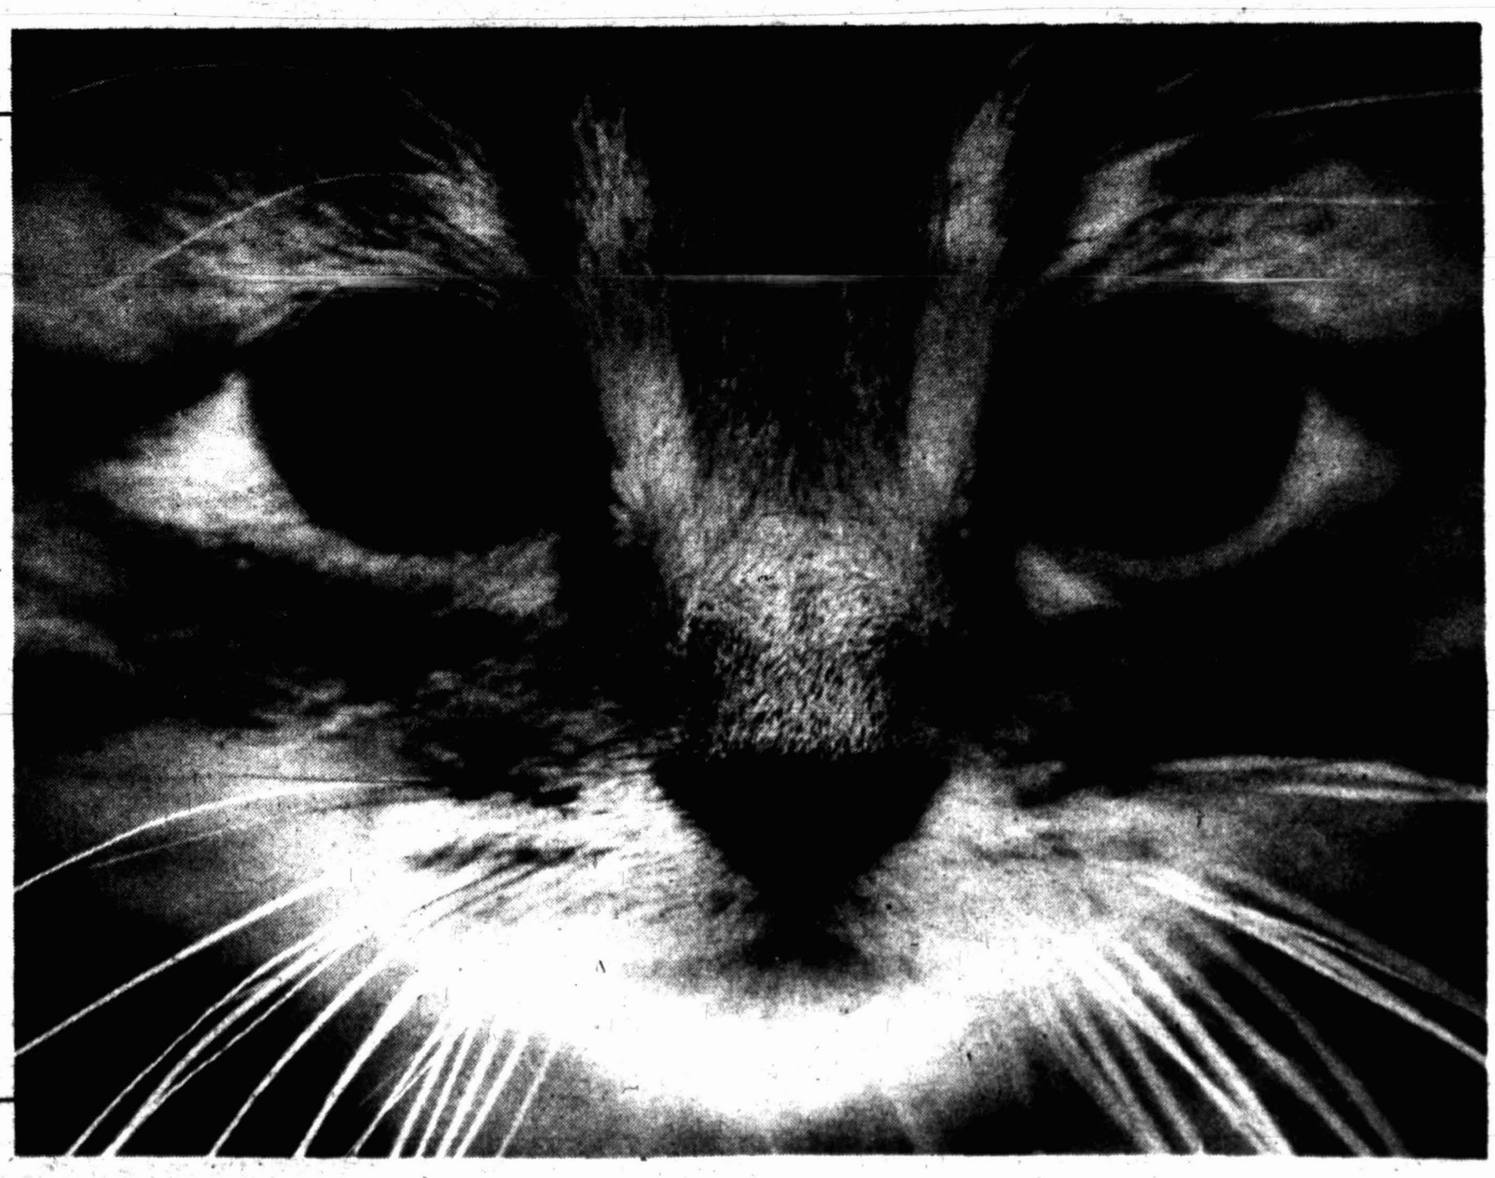
Rescued



This is one of three kittens rescued last week by Valorie Baumgart, Carmel's animal control officer. An anonymous caller had threatened to drown them if they weren't picked up, so she obliged. The kittens were offered temporary shelter at a local veterinary hospital. They were healthy and looking for homes.

Letters

Letters to the editor are welcome. While there is no limit on the number of words, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for length and style, but without changing the intent of the letter writer. Viewpoints on all matters are acceptable following the guidelines of good taste. Anonymous letters are not acceptable, but names may be withheld upon request.

Teen-ager responds

Dear Editor:

Times have changed and untasteful actions taken by certain teen-agers compel some adults to make unfair generalizations.

This is not fair because adults are not faultless, and the origin of some of these teen-age problems comes from adult influence.

It is true that many teen-agers lack morals, respect, intelligence and taste. But much of this is caused by lack of concern or teaching on the paretns' part, or sometimes the teachers.

For instance, what if a generalization is made, such as teen-agers these days are lazy and not willing to take re sponsibilities? The question is, what causes teen-agers to show lack of responsibility? Couldn't it be because parents and teachers don't discourage laziness and because they don't enforce enough responsibility?

One of the problems seems to be that people hear and read so much about so many bad things that they tend to ignore the good. The bad things seem to stick in peoples' minds, such as teen vandalism, drug abuse, sex, fights, and dishonesty, just to name a few. None of this is fair because many teen-agers do very beneficial things with their time.

People have to think about the good before making unfair generalizations. There's plenty of good, but sometimes people have to search a little these days. So before adults make accusations, they should consider how they'd feel if a lot of teen-agers made generalizations such as all adults these days make unfair generalizations about teen-agers.

A pint of blood

Dear Editor:

One factor among so many that we are fortunate to have in Carmel is the Carmel Red Cross.

Our chapter can pride itself in being a real service to the community far above and beyond its initial purpose. You must realize that all Red Cross people are volunteers, and at all times you will find them proficient and extremely helpful.

It is because of their courteous and friendly way that I now give blood regularly. The volunteers helped my first blood donation be a plesant, informative, even fun experience. I walked away feeling I had received, not given something.

To give blood takes an hour at the most. It is basically painless. Your body restores all of its lost blood within 48 hours. Not to mention the great feeling you walk away with, knowing your one pint may help up to three people.

Since our Red Cross is really very good at setting aside convenient times and places for donating, and always gives plenty of advance announcements, there's really no excuse not to give. I urge all of you good people in Carmel and the Valley: Next time you see a poster announcing a blood drive, make it a point to get over there and do it. I assure you, you'll be happy you did.

Pine knots:

Son of Prop. 13

By AL EISNER

EVEN THOUGH the majority of voters in the fire districts and service areas in the Carmel/Pebble Beach/Carmel Valley areas cast ballots in favor of user fees to maintain the same level of fire protection and emergency services, all failed to muster the necessary two-thirds vote required for passage. (The actual vote counts can be found on page 5.)

The lone exception was the Carmel Highlands Fire Protection District where the user fee barely squeaked through with 66.8% of the vote.

After their taxing base was slashed by Proposition 13, all of the fire districts were forced to dip into reserves and to depend on "bailout" funds from the state. The bailout funds and the reserves dried up, and they were obliged to go to the voters to seek approval to impose fees. According to the terms of Proposition 13, a two-thirds majority was necessary. (In Mid-Carmel Valley, 66.2% of the voters said "yes." The measure required 66.6% approval, and failed by only a handful of votes.)

Proponents of the user fees, who issued dire warnings before the election about cutbacks in service, will have to make some hard decisions in the coming weeks. Some of the departments that depend mainly on paid staff will undoubtedly have to lay off some professionals and seek more volunteers.

One of the certain casualties will be emergency ambulance service. While the Carmel Red Cross Chapter provides the vehicles for the two Carmel Valley fire stations, they are manned by human beings who have to be paid for their time. It appears that funding for this will suffer first.

There is a lot of uncertainty about rates for fire insurance.

Property owners in Carmel Valley and the unincorporated areas around Carmel have enjoyed low insurance rates because of the excellent protection they were afforded. These rates could go up if there are sharp cutbacks, or if any of the districts consolidate. The latter would, of course, increase response time for emergency vehicles.

It was predictable that inflation-weary voters would hesitate to vote to tax themselves. It is a tribute, though, to the effectiveness of the firefighters in the various districts that so many people did cast ballots in favor of the user fees.

THE PRESIDENTIAL primary in California provoked a lot of yawns. Attention was focused primarily on the statewide ballot measures. In our own area, though, the races for three seats on the board of supervisors will have greater impact on the quality of life than most other "big" issues.

Fourth District Supervisor Michal Moore beat off a challenge from Joe Sullivan to win re-election to another four-year term. Moore has been somewhat inconsistent in his defense of environment of the Carmel/Carmel Valley area. Now that he has won re-election to a four-year term, I hope he will vote with his instincts rather than currying the favor of growth-oriented interests in the district.

In the first District (North County), County Planning Commissioner Marc Del Piero was the top vote-getter in a big field of candidates, and will face a run-off against businessman Sam Samples in November.

Del Piero has been very open-minded on planning issues in Carmel and Carmel Valley. Local residents interested in preserving our quality of life ought to consider the value of supporting his candidacy.

In our own Fifth District, Bill Peters, who was by far the biggest vote-getter, failed to win a majority, and will face Pacific Grove newspaperman Neill Gardner in November. Gardner, of course, has shown clearly that he favors growth, progress and more development. He will be backed heavily by large property owners and business interests.

Peters was "soft" on a certain large development in Carmel Valley that cost him the support of many environmentalists. The period between now and November will provide ample opportunity for the voters to examine his qualifications and his statements carefully to see if he is deserving of their support.

The Mayor's report:

THIS WEEK'S Planning Commission meeting lasted until 10:30 p.m.

That represents 6½ hours for all members and staff involved. True, there was considerable rhetoric and repetition, but regardless, it put many applicants waiting to have their cases heard on a long waiting list.

That brings us to the presentation made to the council of my proposed revision of the functions of the Planning Commission. The proposal suggests a long-range Planning Commission with seven members and an Architectural Review Board with seven members. The responsibilities of each group vary with the needs.

I have also suggested we give the planning director or the building inspector authority to pass on unquestionable applications on sight. That would save some staff time and commissioners' time as each application requires — at the present time — an average of four hours and 15 minutes to process. That does not include the hours spent by the commission to review the applications.

The proposed revision goes to the Planning Commission for its suggestions and remarks. A few days after the June 12 council meeting, we will have a meeting of the Planning Commission and the council to discuss Planning Commission matters and to have common and better understandings of problems involved in its function.

THE LOSS OF the gasoline station at Seventh and San Carlos has created much concern.

Several calls have come in opposing the approval of the partial open-air operation as a food outlet. The need for gasoline for our residents and visitors is of great concern. I have been putting in much time to try to work out a different solution. Hopefully — it will happen.

•

I WOULD LIKE to correct two errors which appeared two weeks ago in the "Letter From Gwen" column in the Pine Cone.

The first concerns my "taking over of the finance office lock, stock and barrel." Let's get this straight right now. As there was nobody occupying this office at the moment, I have used it purely on a temporary basis. At any time there is a better need I'll be out in 10 minutes. (Incidentally, this space was offered to former Mayor Norberg, but he chose to work at home.)

The other error was the article regarding the sidewalk work done at Dolores and Sixth. There was no connection between the new surface in front of the remodeled building and the curb for the handicapped at the corner. The sidewalk was done by the owner through private contractor, and the curb was a city project. The two projects just hit at the same time.

This is not a complaint; just wanted to keep things in a proper perspective.

•

AGAIN, I wish to congratulate the Pine Cone for the fine coverage of the candidates and issues coming up on the June 3 election. Well done in a manner easy to follow.

Voting is your privilege. Use it wisely.

Smiles are contagious.
Try it!

Mayor Barney

A letter from Gwen

Dear Ben:
From "The Other Side of the Grapestake Fence."

WITH OUR NEW MAYOR coming on like gangbusters, my apprehension about the direction in which Carmel is going increases daily.

His priorities as I see them are;

I. A new City Hall.

II. Reconstruction of the Planning Commission.

III. A parking facility on the north field of Sunset.

Let's talk about building a new City Hall. My first question would be "why?" And if I indeed had 20 questions, each of them would be "why?" Our present funky, charming, centrally located City Hall is Carmel. It has an ambience that is unequaled. A bright, shiny, new and modern City Hall would be totally out of character for our little village.

And I'd be willing to bet a bundle that most of the residents feel the same way. Further, what an incredible waste of the taxpayer's money. Why is it monuments are so important to politicians?

•

AS FOR reconstruction of the Planning Commission—that idea may or may not have merit. I have an uneasy feeling this is where the "new broom" concept comes into play.

But, since it is of vital concern to the present Planning Commission, why wasn't it brought before it for input? As a matter of fact, why wasn't it even discussed with the administration (chairman and vice-chairman) of that body before it was presented to council?

"Damn the torpedoes, full speed ahead"—is this to be the slogan for the Laiolo years?

A PARKING facility on the north field of Sunset — is this chestnut being taken out of the fire again? I can see it all now, standing on the corner of San Carlos and Eighth as 400 cars spill out on our village streets, spewing their pollutants, robbing us of our clean air and creating the traffic jam of the century.

Ubiquitous use of the automobile is robbing us of our Village atmosphere. Now a monolithic structure is proposed that will further lock us in an embrace of destruction with the automobile. There are rational alternatives. They should be considered before this idea is pursued any further.

•

KUDOS TO Helen Arnold and Frank Lloyd for recognizing what Mike Brown has known all the time — that Ambag is a vital and much needed organization that has provided our city, as well as the whole Peninsula, with invaluable assistance.

Talked to dozens of business folks in town after the Memorial Day weekend. They reported the cash registers were ringing and singing all three days, music to their ears! Carmel, indeed, just may be recession proof.

"The Mayor's Report" May 30, 1980 said the Piccadilly property was an "advisory" issue. True enough. And it was apparent by the vote that the people did indeed "advise" the city they wished the property to be purchased. And yet our mayor shrugs this off saying he doubts the public would support the issue if it were presented again. Well, Mr. Mayor, there's one way to find out. The voters cannot be ignored with the wave of the gavel or the whim of a council. Vox Populi.

From Gwen

P.S. Do you suppose that in the future, Mr. Mayor, you might use the term public restrooms rather than public "toilets?"

Woods School festival

Carmel Woods School had its 30th annual May Festival Friday, May 30. About 200 attended. The musicians (top, from left) are Annette Schultze, Tawni Neikirk, Janice Aldrich and Brett Bowman, all fifth-graders. Third-graders (right) do a Virginia Reel. A traditional Maypole Dance (below) was by fourth- and fifth-graders. After the performances, a bake sale, picnic on the lawn and raffle were held.

City buys 8 more 'in-lieu' parking spaces

CARMEL PLANNING COMMISSION APPROVED two variance applications submitted by Melvin Kline of Carmel, May 28, while continuing a third in his bid to build apartments on Junipero between Fourth and Fifth.

Kline applied for a variance to allow an additional foot in height above the 30-foot maximum for buildings in the R-4 zoning district.

The apartments received concept approval March 19.

Kline's plans call for the construction of a two-story complex that will have five studio apartments and a single-bedroom apartment on the first floor, and a studio and three one-bedroom apartments on the second.

The plan also calls for seven parking stalls in the basement, along with a laundry room and a small storage area.

Kline said in a letter to the Board of Adjustments April 30 that due to severe slope of the property, an approximately nine-degree grade, the additional foot would be required at the back of the building to avoid excessive slope to the downramp of the parking garage.

Commissioners agreed the variance would not represent a hardship on neighbors and the variance was approved.

•

A VARIANCE to allow Kline to buy eight "in-lieu" parking spaces for the apartments was also approved, although Kline asked that he be allowed three years to pay for them.

Each in-lieu parking space costs $13,750, for a total of $110,000 for the eight.

"The Planning Commission is not empowered to make that concession to you," Planning Director Robert Griggs said.

Kline said he would ask the City Council about it.

•

A VARIANCE APPLICATION by Kline to reduce by two off-site parking spaces for the Mission Patio on Mission between Fifth and Sixth, and the Broken Egg building site, adjacent to Mission Patio was continued and referred to the Land Use Committee.

Mission Patio occupies two lots, one zoned C-1-C, one zoned C-1-S.

"When I built Mission Patio in 1973," Kline said, "the parking requirements of the Municipal Code at that time stated that if it was not feasible to provide on-site parking, off-site parking could be supplied by variance and a use permit (issued) providing that such parking was within 600 feet of the building site."

The property Kline now wants to develop on Junipero was provided to satisfy parking requirements for Mission Patio, he said.

Kline originally intended to provide a two-level underground parking garage for the apartment complex, which would have met parking requirements for 14 of 17 spaces required by city ordinance at the location. He was stymied by a morass of city building regulations that would have required him to obtain use permits for a third story, two driveways, removal of a city tree from the sidewalk, and significant slope to the driveway ramps.

In the review of plans for the project by the Planning Commission, it was recently pointed out that recent changes in zoning ordinances now prohibit this site from being used for parking for buildings in the C-1-C and C-1-S or other commercial zones, making the present use and proposed new use of the land nonconforming.

"As a result of the Planning Commission review of these factors, and the problems they would generate, I decided to eliminate the second garage level and to remove parking spaces allocated to the existing buildings (Mission Patio).

"I request a hardship variance of the land and other conditions resulting from changes in the zoning ordinances, to forgive one parking space each for the Mission Patio and Broken Egg building site," Kline said.

Commissioners were unsympathetic, saying that agreements with a previous Planning Commission were not binding on the present one.

The variance application was continued and referred to the Land Use Committee for further consideration.

Carmel council votes 4-1 to buy nursery; Laiolo stands alone in opposition

By BOB BATES

ANY ATTEMPT by the city to acquire Piccadilly Nursery through condemnation proceedings would probably fail, according to Mayor Barney Laiolo.

Laiolo made that comment after the June 2 City Council meeting, during which his fellow councilmen voted to negotiate with the owners of the Piccadilly, on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh, to buy it.

The council voted 4-1 to buy it.

Laiolo stood alone among members of the council, in opposing the purchase of the property which has been appraised for as much as $400,000.

"If (the city is) successful in acquiring the property," Laiolo said, "I want to donate a plaque for the restrooms they plan to put there, giving the names of those who voted for it."

The possibility of acquiring the land through condemnation is an alternative the council may pursue should the owners be unwilling to sell or a price is not agreed upon, according to City Administrator Doug Peterson. Peterson and City Attorney George Brehmer will be negotiating with Thomas Hawley, who represents the owners, George Linsley and Mary Lou Linhart.

The city agreed to complete negotiations within 30 days and report to the City Council.

A decision will then be made.

"I doubt the city would be successful in a condemnation proceeding," Laiolo said. "A court would have to be convinced that a public need exists before it (the property) could be acquired in that manner.

"I just can't see that public restrooms at that location represent a public need."

Hawley, the owners' lawyer, said, "The property has been appraised in excess of $400,000 in fair market value. The $400,000 figure is a minimum."

City estimates said it is worth about $300,000.

"A property not a block away was recently sold for $300,000, Hawley said, "and it was in a much inferior spot to this one."

The owners are reluctant to sell because the land has been in their family since 1910 or before, but the city is leaving them no alternative, Hawley said.

"We can express gratitude that the council has agreed to act promptly and to complete negotiations within 30 days," he said.

•

COUNCILMAN HOWARD Brunn, who has been a prime mover in the effort to acquire the property, said the council made the right move when it voted to negotiate for the property.

"I think it reflects the sentiments of the voters who asked us to buy it," Brunn said.

The acquisition was an advisory issue on the ballot in November 1979.

Voters in Carmel indicated they wanted the city to buy the property 56.2 percent to 43.8 percent.

Councilwoman Helen Arnold said the city should acquire as much property as possible.

"We already own 16 properties in Carmel," Laiolo responded.

"It is city ownership of these properties that makes Carmel unique," Mrs. Arnold said, "and is the reason visitors want to come here."

Included in the city-owned property are Sunset Center and Carmel Beach.

Councilman Frank Lloyd said he was impressed by a statement by Brunn that the property will appreciate in value at a more rapid rate than other investments the city might make.

Councilman Mike Brown said he favors preserving as much open space as possible. He voted for acquisition.

Group wants help to keep tankers out of bay

BY BOB BATES

AN ENVIRONMENTALIST GROUP called Friends Of Grove (FOG) has asked Carmel City Council for a grant to enable the activist organization to continue its work in preserving the environment of the Monterey Peninsula.

Ann Bartee and Gail Bower, representing FOG at the City Council meeting Monday, June 2, became embroiled in a debate with a representative of Pacific Gas and Electric Co. over supertankers in Monterey Bay.

Roy Haus of PG&E said the utility will continue to bring oil into the bay to fuel its Moss Landing generating plant, whether or not supertankers are allowed in Monterey Bay.

"What we want to do is improve our facility and increase our fuel supply," he said.

PG&E would be willing to build its moorings for supertankers farther from shore for safety, Haus said.

Councilman Howard Brunn accompanied FOG representatives to Sacramento June 4 where they met with Gray Davis, an aide to Gov. Brown, in an attempt to prevent Army Corps of Engineers approval of the supertanker project at Moss Landing.

"We are absolutely confident that a letter will be sent from the governor's office to stop the project," Mrs. Bartee told the Pine Cone.

Mayor Barney Laiolo asked the FOG representatives why they did not go to Pacific Grove City Council for help before coming to Carmel. The group is based in Pacific Grove.

"Carmel has traditionally taken the lead in matters affecting the environment of the Peninsula, with other cities following that lead," Mrs. Bartee responded.

Councilman Frank Lloyd said he was "honored" that FOG had come to Carmel first.

"I find it extraordinary what this group has accomplished with no help from any government agency, except support in the form of resolutions," Lloyd said.

The executive committee of FOG spent more than $3,000 in its battle against PG&E to stop the supertankers from coming to Monterey Bay, according to Mrs. Bartee.

"I think it is an excellent cause," Laiolo said. "I still feel we should not contribute to a non-profit group without the money having been budgeted first."

•

ALSO SPEAKING AGAINST the support to FOG were Henry Stefanetti and Dorothea Roberts.

Stefanetti said the council would be "flogging a dead horse" in providing financial support to FOG.

Mrs. Roberts said she understood that oil spills occur most often at moorings where oil is transferred from ships to receiving facilities, and that by lessening the number of ships that come into the Bay through the use of supertankers, the chance of a major spill was actually minimized.

The council agreed to continue the matter of contribution to FOG until the next council meeting Monday, June 9.

Boards to discuss Planning Commission reorganization

THE CITY COUNCIL AND PLANNING COMMISSION will meet in joint session at 4 p.m., June 12, in City Hall to consider the reorganization of the Planning Commission and other matters of interest to both boards.

"I think it is a good idea," Planning Commission Chairman Robert Stephenson said. "There are a number of matters we need to discuss."

The meeting was called by Mayor Barney Laiolo at the request of both the council and the Planning Commission during the June 2 meeting of the City Council.

Laiolo has been pushing for the reorganization of the Planning Commission since taking office in April.

Other items on the agenda will include consideration of the Carmel General Plan, transient occupancy and discussion of the construction of large houses on standard 40-by-100-foot lots in Carmel, which has caused some concern among both councilmen and planning commissioners.

Laiolo's latest proposal for the restructuring of the Planning Commission calls for a seven-member board made up of people with varied experience who would meet once a month. It would consider matters involving the General Plan, subdivisions, zoning, appeals and environmental impact reports.

An ad hoc committee or a consultant would be used if needed.

A separate Architectural Review Board, meeting twice a month, would consist of an architect, two members of the building trades, a landscaper, a lawyer and a resident. It would consider design review applications, landscaping, signs and exterior lights, according to Laiolo's plan.

A hearing officer, acting independently from either the Planning Commission or the Architectural Review Board, would hear applications for variances and use permits once a month.

City Council opts to keep pay check; voters to get final word

CARMEL CITY COUNCIL voted June 2 to continue receiving salaries until 1982, when voters may decide whether to rescind an ordinance making council pay mandatory, passed October 1980 by the outgoing council of former Mayor Gunnar Norberg.

Under the ordinance, new Mayor Barney Laiolo will receive $200 a month, while other councilmen will receive $150.

Laiolo strongly opposed compensation for councilmen, and was supported by Councilmen Howard Brunn and Mike Brown.

Both Councilwoman Helen Brown and Councilman Frank Lloyd favor the measure.

"It makes it possible for little people as well as the monied to participate in city government," Mrs. Arnold said.

Lloyd said he was particularly concerned that young women with children be able to participate in city government.

"The $150 would go a long way in making it possible for them to take part in city matters," Lloyd said.

"People with children at home should be at home with their children," Laiolo said.

"Are you saying a woman's place is in the home?" Mrs. Arnold asked the mayor.

"I have nothing against women," Laiolo said.

On a motion by Mrs. Arnold, the issue was tabled until 1982, when an election will be held to determine whether Carmel voters want the council to be salaried.

Voters in area reject fire fees

VOTERS IN THE THREE COUNTY SERVICE AREAS around Carmel rejected user fees for fire protection services Tuesday, while Carmel Highlands was one of only three fire districts in the county to approve a fee.

Proposed fees ranging from $90 to $160 for single-family residences in CSA 43, 42 and 39 failed to muster the two-thirds vote needed for approval.

Despite warnings from Monterey County officials that fire protection service and insurance rates would suffer without user fees, nearly half the voters in the three CSAs here voted against fees.

To fire officials, the message was clear: Residents are willing to accept less fire protection and higher insurance rates, or else they believe the county was bluffing when it said general fund revenue will not be provided to maintain the current level of services.

Measure "A" in CSA 39 (Aguajito area) was defeated, with only 65 percent (261 to 141) voting for approval; two-thirds (66.67 percent) is required. It called for an annual fee of $90 for single-family residences.

Measure "B" in CSA 42 (Pebble Beach) lost, with 1,228 voting against, 1,233 voting for, or a 49.8 percent to 50.1 percent margin; it called for a $184 annual fee.

Measure "C" in CSA 43, the mouth of Carmel Valley including Hatton Fields and Carmel Woods, failed, with only 53.1 percent, or 1,650 voting for, 1,453 against; the fee would have been $160.

The $199 annual fee in Carmel Highlands was narrowly approved with 66.8 percent, or 129 to 64.

•

SIMILAR FEES were defeated in the two fire districts in Carmel Valley.

The $190 annual fee proposed in Mid-Carmel Valley Fire District fell short by only 13 votes out of nearly 1,000 cast.

The issue of fire protection services in the County Service Areas rests now with the county Board of Supervisors.

The services areas are manned by state Department of Forestry personnel and funded through a share of the county's property tax revenue.

Declines in property tax revenue since Proposition 13 in 1978 have forced shortfalls in money for service areas; they were expected to receive for 1980-81 only one-third of their operating revenue from the county.

The supervisors in February adopted a policy that additional bailout money will not be provided to fire districts that do not approve user fees.

According to Brian Weatherford, operations chief for the Department of Forestry, the defeat of the user fees leaves the county with three alternatives short of drastic cutbacks in personnel and services.

Weatherford said supervisors could rescind their policy and provide bailout money to fire districts. That likelihood was helped with the defeat of Proposition 9, which would have halved state income tax revenues.

The supervisors could reorganize the fire districts into one county-wide district, and supplement its operation with revenue from sources other than property taxes, Weatherford said.

A third, but unlikely, alternative would be for the service areas to operate on current income until November when another election could be held on the user fees.

Weatherford said, "This isn't very attractive to us because the voters clearly said this time that they don't want special taxes, and that they expect fire services to be funded out of general revenues."

If cutbacks are forced, he said the three service areas around Carmel would have to lay off 15 firemen.

Ron Zeise, chief of the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire District, said the defeat of the user fees will force the layoff of his paid crew of four men, including himself. It will leave the equipment and department to be operated by a full-volunteer force.

He said of the election results: "People out there called the county's bluff, but I don't think the county was bluffing.

"I doubt if it will provide extra funds for fire services."

View through a Grapestake Fence

by Ben

ONCE UPON A TIME THERE WAS A GARDENER who planted a garden.

It was very large, and the roses especially were the most beautiful and varied in size, shape and color. The guests who came to see the garden enjoyed wandering among the unusual setting for the flowers. Some of the plantings were in open areas, some by pools or streams. Others were on undulating hillocks, or tucked in behind large rocks or at the base of big trees.

There was one rose that grew by itself. It was at the end of a winding path, beside the water, surrounded by stately trees, and it grew with its roots in a mossy green setting, all alone in solitary splendor.

The rose bush was tall. Its stems were the strongest, green and straight. Its leaves were large, gleaming in the sunlight, a dark, rich green. Its thorns were curved and sharp.

The rose blossoms were what made everyone gasp with awe and delight. They were long-budded and opened into huge flowers that spread their petals wide. Looking down into the full bloom, the petals lay over each other like velvet pillows.

But the color! It was creamy-white. No. It was spindrift in the fog — almost not there — almost felt, not seen. It was pearly-sheened, mother-of-pearl, or the inside of an abalone shell; white, holding all the colors. It was opal, translucent, with hints of other colors that skipped past your eyes so fast they seemed an illusion.

•

ONE DAY, A MAN VISITED THE GARDEN. He saw the solitary rose and exclaimed: "Everyone must be able to see this flower! It is the most beautiful on earth! We must make it accessible to all!"

And he did. He brought in his experts, and they advised him how to protect the garden. They said, "You can't allow the Gardener to plant anything else. You must make more paths so the people can find this great rose more easily."

And they did. They cut paths through the middle of the flower beds, they put bridges over the streams, they placed benches all around, with great circles of cement and drinking fountains, so the people could come and see and sit and drink and eat and sleep and wade in the streams and swim in the pools, and they surrounded the whole garden with acres of parking lots, for convenience and easy access.

So the people came and they tramped through the garden, day and night, and they looked at it all and never saw anything.

The great rose bush stood in the midst of people. They crushed down the moss at its roots. They blew their smoke into its blossoms. They broke stems off as they pressed close, saying, "Yeah, I saw it. When do we eat?"

The children dropped their ice cream, and let the flavorings melt into the soil at its base. They tore the petals off and rushed away, yelling, "Mommy, look at the pretty flower."

The people kept coming, and saw, but did not see. And as the seasons passed, the great rose grew dim with its colors. Its straight green stems turned brown and spotted. Its leaves lost their luster and they withered and curled.

•

STILL, THE PEOPLE CAME. But now the garden was trampled, littered with beer cans, scarred by campfires and beaten-down plants.

The man came back one day with a crowd of his experts. "See what I have done for all the people? I have preserved this great garden for them," he said. And they all nodded in agreement and left the garden, having looked, but not seen.

The Gardener came back to his garden. It was no longer his; no longer a garden.

And the great rose stood in solitary shame. And died. And the Gardener wept.

The name of the garden was California.

The name of the great rose was Big Sur.

Gardner faces Peters in November

By STEVE HELLMAN

WILLIAM PETERS OF Carmel Valley will face Neill Gardner of Pacific Grove in a runoff this November for the Fifth District supervisor seat.

The runoff will pit Peters, a growth-control advocate, against Gardner, a staunch pro-growth candidate.

Votes that went to three runners-up Tuesday will decide the race in November, according to Peters and Gardner.

Of the five candidates, none carried a majority of the vote.

Peters received 7,502 or 38.2 percent, Gardner 5,103 or 26 percent, Jim O'Brien 2,847 or 14.5 percent, Florence Hunter 2,664 or 13.5 percent and David Thorpe 1,489 or 7.5 percent.

Peters, who had expected to win a majority June 3, said, "The obvious factor is what O'Brien and Hunter's votes will do."

Asked if he expected endorsements from either, he said he had received no indications from O'Brien or Mrs. Hunter. "We do know we'll need 13 more percent to win," he said.

Between now and November, Peters said the major issue in the race will be growth.

"I'll continue my stand for controlled growth, while Gardner has made clear his stand for unlimited growth," Peters said.

The vote for Gardner was not expected to be as large as 26 percent, although Gardner said, "Everything is going just according to plan.

"We came away with a good strong position, while the great deal of uncommitted votes are in Pacific Grove, Monterey and Pebble Beach, the areas that I more directly represent."

Mrs. Hunter, of Pacific Grove, said she was surprised by the support for Gardner, a fiscally-conservative candidate who she strongly opposed on issues of support services and programs. She added, however, she would not endorse Peters.

"I'll leave my voters to decide for themselves," she said.

O'Brien, of Pebble Beach, said he had to think about the results before casting an endorsement.

"I'm in a quandry," he said. "Gardner scares me with his attitude that we adopt zoning and then stand back and let the developers have all they want. But I don't think Peters is that great a planner.

"He supported the Carmel Valley Ranch."

Farr wants a 'healing of wounds'

AFTER HIS VICTORY Tuesday in the Democratic primary for the 28th state Assembly District, Sam Farr of Carmel called for a "healing of wounds" with his opponent Kevin LaGraff.

He criticized LaGraff for allowing the battle over the Assembly speaker to enter their race.

LaGraff was supported heavily by Speaker Leo McCarthy, while Farr picked up large donations from McCarthy's opponent, Assemblyman Howard Berman.

"I would be a neutral voice (in the speakership battle)," Farr said. "My main interest in the Assembly would be to protect the Central Coast region. I don't know who I would vote for for speaker."

Farr said that McCarthy asked for his support, and when he (Farr) refused to commit himself, McCarthy turned to LaGraff.

Pamphlets mailed to LaGraff only days before the election attacking Farr's legislative record as a county supervisor were orchestrated by McCarthy's forces, Farr said.

He said, "The pamphlets were false, they insulted the voters' intelligence, and they were rejected."

In Monterey County, Farr outscored LaGraff 8,345 to 5,929.

Farr insisted that with the Democrats united behind him and on the basis of his 5½-year record as an active, local politician, he can win in November against the Republican opponent.

"There are some politicans who react to the agenda, and those like myself who roll up their sleeves and seek reforms," he said.

Hailing the defeat of Proposition 9 as a dangerous threat to schools and public services, Farr insisted that tax reform is the job of state legislators and that it would be among his priorities.

Money we spend on the poor keeps growing

By SAR A. LEVITAN

WASHINGTON — AS THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN heats up, liberals bemoan the demise of the Great Society's aspirations and conservatives celebrate the revival of a fundamentalist ideology.

But a look at the total sum the government spends on aid to the poor shows that liberals' hand-wringing is premature and that conservatives' jubilation is ill-founded. Great Society rhetoric has been muted, but its initiatives keep flourishing, albeit mostly under different names and changed managements.

During the presumably conservative 1970s, federal outlays for the poor doubled, after adjusting for inflation, reaching a total of $67.5 billion in the current fiscal year. The government is spending this year about $2,750 per poor person — about twice as much as a decade ago, even after adjusting for inflation. Looking at those numbers another way, in 1970 federal anti-poverty outlays accounted for 9.1 percent of the total budget as compared with an estimated 12 percent in 1980. Granted that those estimates are crude and unofficial — in 1975 the government stopped making estimates of its contributions to the poor — the general magnitude of outlays in aid to the poor indicates a sustained growth of the welfare state.

Without passing judgment on whether the doubling of all aid to the poor during the 1970s indicates progress or deterioration of the body politic, the fact that those numbers have not received any attention in the current national campaign is deplorable, even if it is understandable. In this presumably conservative era, no political candidate wants to claim credit for the expansion of the welfare state.

Meanwhile, advocates of the programs keep asking for more, too often ignoring what already has been achieved. The fact is that the welfare state has become an integral part of our economic system.

WHO'S NEWS
. . . on the Carmel business scene

By FLORENCE MASON

CARMEL INN
Huntsmans Farms Inc., owner
Lillie Lambert, executive director

It's not a new business by any means, but Carmel Inn has had a new owner and an executive director since May 1.

Originally, Lillie Lambert planned to open a senior citizens' village herself, a project for which she was well qualified by experience. She had traveled thoughout California for a Los Angeles company that runs convalescent homes, hospitals and ambulatory centers. More recently, she had been health educator for the Prevention of Blindness Society in Washington, D.C.

In California, she ran into difficulty finding an appropriate property for a senior citizens' village. She came to Carmel about four years ago and bought Jim Mustard's real estate business. She sold it in February 1979.

This year, the timing was right for another opportunity: the Carmel Inn was for sale, it was business she understood and, as a registered representative for Huntsmans Farms in California, she knew the company that could finance the purchase of this well-established residential-care facility.

(Huntsmans Farms is the largest rice-growing farm in Arkansas, the largest rice-growing state. The company has other investments in California.)

Although she plans to keep her hand in the real estate business, planning for the Carmel Inn and overseeing its operation for Huntsmans Farms will be Mrs. Lambert's first priority.

The administrator of the Inn will continue to be Mrs. Karen Pratt, a registered nurse who has been there eight years. No major changes in operation of the inn are planned. The company does plan to enhance the physical setting and provide more entertainment and recreation for the residents.

The goal? "A really beautiful place where people can live with dignity," according to Mrs. Lambert. "It has a super location. The residents can walk to everything. But the place itelf needs a little TLC (tender loving care)."

Mrs. Lambert lives on Rio Road in Carmel. She has four children, the youngest of whom is Keith, 19. He attended Carmel High School and Monterey Peninsula College and is going on to Pepperdine College this month. When that happens, Mrs. Lambert will be facing one of the major life changes that most of the residents of Carmel Inn have already experienced; she'll be alone for the first time in many years. She isn't sure just how she will react to that, but she believes that responsiblity for the Carmel Inn has come into her life at just the right time.

NEW TODAY
Diane Farrow

A "general store" that features quality items that are practical, not just decorative, has opened in the Plaza Linda Building, Carmel Valley Village.

There's a long list of items fitting that description: kitchenware, baskets, knives, umbrellas, rain hats, visors, summer straw hats, compasses, camping equipment. There is a music accessories section offering things such as guitar strings, picks, recorders and harmonicas. All that merchandise is neatly arranged within the limits of 300 square feet.

Diane Farrow, owner of New Today, lived in Big Sur for 10 years and was buyer and manager of the Ventana store. When she decided to open her own store, she turned to Carmel Valley for space and a good market for practical products.

Now she lives in the Valley herself and is putting in her own garden. Her part-time job with the Big Sur Gazette helps her finance the new venture.

Mrs. Farrow depends on her son, Jay, and a friend, Glenn Tinturin, to fill in at the store. In her spare time, she may be found looking for jade down the coast, taking pleasure in something decorative as well as practical.

The Legend...

In 1917 fate brought together two great women of our century face to face—Dr. Nadine Payot and the fabled ballerina, Anna Pavlova. "When I met Pavlova, I was struck by the curious difference between her face and body. Her beautiful body was still young and lissome and firm through daily exercise and lack of exposure to the elements, while her face was severely marked by age," reported Dr. Payot. "I was fascinated by the possibility of changing all that." Dr. Payot committed herself to the art and science of helping women protect their skin from moisture loss and protect their facial muscles from premature deterioration by proper massage and exercise. Her methods and preparations were so successful that the rich, the beautiful and the renowned flocked to the "Payot Institut de Beaute", located at the historical mansion of the Countess of Castiglione, where Napoleon III had once climbed incognito up the spiraling staircase to rejoin the Countess. Almost 60 years of success in more than 50 countries have proven the effectiveness of Payot.

IT WAS Carmel Youth Baseball Family Day. Lisa Serrano, 9, got her face painted by Rani Morgan, 12. The Carmel High School Band entertained. Bob Lande (left and above) sat above the dunking bin as a young game player tried to hit the target and send him for a bath. The target fell, and so did Lande.

Youth baseball

By WENDY BANKS

THERE WAS LOTS OF ACTION and fun this week at the Carmel Youth Baseball Field.

Not only were scheduled games going on in full swing, but the annual Family Day was held Sunday. A chicken barbeque, raffle and auction kept the adults busy, while the children were having fun using the pitching machine and taking a chance on the cake walk. The longest line seemed to be at the dunk tank; where else can a youngster get three chances to get the coach all wet?

Coming back after a week's rest (while the fifth-graders went to Science Camp) the Bronco field was alive with action.

Granite Rock and Derek Rayne kept battling and came up with a 6-6 tie after seven innings. Chris Clark and Kerry Woodson both doubled for Derek Rayne. Leading hitters for Granite Rock were Jonathan D'Attilio, Mike Fogle and Billy Fogle. Contributing to the action with a double play in the fifth inning were Mike Takigawa and Perry Tarsitano for Granite Rock.

Jim Miller tripled, while Mario Lozado and Chris Hall doubled to lead Derek Rayne to a win over La Playa. Kerry Woodson was the winning pitcher. Chris Franklin got the loss.

•

OVER ON THE Mustang field, Dick Bruhn out-hit Kidder-Peabody and ended up with a decisive win.

There were two home runs, by Tyana Saxby of Kidder-Peabody and Paul Wagstaff of Dick Bruhn. Also hitting well were D'Attilio and Tarantino for the winners and Foreman and Eppler for the losers.

Two days later, Kidder-Peabody came back and beat Shoe Box. Darren Reed got the win and was helped with some good hitting from Mindy Faia, Tyana Saxby, Eric Cederstram and Matt Huntington; Erik Sincoff did a great job for Shoe Box.

•

ORANGE JULIUS stayed on top by beating Nielsen Brothers. Extra-base hits were credited to Chris Stevenson and John Selle for O.J., while Jeff Lewis and Christopher Parrish did the same for Nielsen.

Neanderthal Furniture lived up to its name by clubbing Nielsen with assistance from Steve Pretzer and Steve Szazy.

Dick Bruhn was edged by Rudy-Harris 6-5. Paul Wagstaff was the winning pitcher and Paul Tarantino hit a double for the winners. Doubles for Rudy-Harris came from Jason London, Donnie Nix, Joshua Banks and Juan Colman.

Later on that week, Orange Julius squeezed by Shoe Box 7-4.

Dick Bruhn did something nobody else has done this season: they tied league-leading Orange Julius 2-2 after six innings of regulation Mustang play. Helping Dick Bruhn were Tom White's pitching and a fired-up team. Michael Little cracked a high pop-fly to center for a stand-up double. John Selle also had a double for O.J.

The Neanderthals beat Kidder-Peabody, with Bobby Carroll getting the win. Steve Szozy doubled for the winners and Brandon Kirsch and Eric Cederstrom for the losers.

In one of the closest games of the week, a large audience watched Rudy-Harris steal by Nielsen 6-5. The game was tied going into the bottom of the sixth when Joshua Banks stole home to end the game. Jeff Roberts struck out six in a row and went three for three to help Nielsen. Joshua Banks hit an inside-the-park home run, and Sean Morton got a double for Rudy-Harris. Marty Faber got his first hit of the year and P.J. Tedrow hit a crucial sacrifice. Abner Smith was the winning pitcher.

All mid-week games begin at 5:30 p.m., and Saturday games at 9:30 a.m. on the field by the Mission.

He may not build his dream house in Pescadero Canyon

NORMAN McBRIDE JR. of Carmel may abandon plans to build his dream house here due to conditions placed on his property by the Board of Adjustments at a meeting May 28.

Although the board approved McBride's application for a permit to build a house on the north side of Second Street between Casanova and Palou in Pescadero Canyon, McBride objected to conditions established by the board's Land Use Committee.

"I find these conditions interesting," McBride said. "The city is asking everything and giving nothing."

Particularly galling to McBride, he said, was a condition that he place a deed restriction on the property and grant the city a public easement across the land.

The property was previously placed on the Land Acquisition List as one that should be purchased by the city, have a restricted deed, and be resold for single-family use.

The land is in an area that provides a scenic view of the Pescadero Canyon.

McBride's agreement to the deed restriction — which would prohibit further subdivision — and the granting of a scenic easement to the city meet the same purpose as the purchase and resale of the property, according to a Land Use Committee report.

"The only thing the city is granting me is the honor of living here," McBride said.

"I have incurred more than $5,000 in architect's and engineering fees and I cannot afford to come back to you, hat in hand, and ask your permission to build my house.

"Before I agree to all of these conditions, I want an iron-clad guarantee that I will be allowed to build."

"If you stay within the limitations of the Land Use report, you can build whatever you want," Commission Chairman Robert Stephenson said.

"What would be the chances of the city buying your property?" Stephenson asked McBride.

"You have worn me down. I am tired. You can have it," McBride replied.

•

LATER, HOWEVER, McBride said he would take the matter to the City Council and appeal the conditions placed on his land.

"I think they are being dictatorial," McBride told the Pine Cone in a telephone interview.

McBride said he might build a subterranean house to meet all the conditions placed on the property concerning scenic easement.

"It would be a sort of glorified cave," McBride said, "a really extraordinary house.

"I really can't afford to go through all of this again," McBride said of his experience with the Planning Commission. "I put all I had into what I have done. I like the idea of an underground house though," he added. "The architect thinks the idea is the greatest thing that ever happened in Carmel."

•

IN OTHER Board of Adjustments business:

- Consideration of an application by Viola Wise for a permit to retain plumbing fixtures to create a darkroom in a home on a single-family building site at Santa Rita and Third was continued, and a Land Use Committee report was asked in the matter.
- An application for a permit to allow a change of ownership in an existing food service business (Judy's Pantry on Lincoln between Ocean and Seventh) was granted by the board. The application was made by Paul Steenwyk.
- An application for a variance to allow Walter Unger to build a roof over the sun deck of a house on San Carlos between First and Second was continued. Unger would be required to provide additional parking.

Parking should have been provided when the house was constructed, prior to 1941, according to Planning Director Robert Griggs.

- An application by Ernest Arbuckle for a variance to allow a parking spot on his property at Mission between First and Second was approved. Arbuckle, who is moving the house, built between 1884 and 1886, farther back on the property to make room for the parking place on the front set-back, was asked to rotate the house so it is centered more squarely on the lot. The house is at an angle on the property.

She's fed up with paying $13,750 not to build parking space

CARMEL PLANNING COMMISSIONER SANDY SWAIN is fed up with "in-lieu" parking and city inaction in providing public parking from its revenue.

"In-lieu" parking allows commercial developers to pay the city $13,750 for each parking space the law requires for customers and tenants instead of providing the places.

"In-lieu parking is getting completely out of hand in Carmel," Miss Swain said during the Planning Commission and Board of Adjustments meeting May 28. "I would like my fellow commissioners to agree to ask the City Council to take a look at it and re-evaluate the ordinance."

Revenue from in-lieu parking is placed in a special bank account and is to be used only for the development of city parking.

Since the city adopted the ordinance—in September 1972—$160,750 has been collected. Interest on that is $8,697.

The interest need not be used to provide parking, according to City Administrator Doug Peterson.

An in-lieu parking space cost $4,500 in 1972. Gradual increases have raised it to $13,750.

•

FIFTEEN IN-LIEU parking spaces were approved by the commission May 28 for two developments under consideration.

If the City Council approves them — for Melvin Kline and Thomas Sweeney — in-lieu parking revenue on hand will increase by $206,250 to more than $360,000 in city coffers to provide parking.

City Planning Director Robert Griggs said after the meeting that if people who have paid for in-lieu parking in the past were to file a claim against the city, the city would be forced to either use the money to provide parking, or return it so the people might put in their own parking.

"Actually, there are only a few properties left in Carmel that can be developed," Griggs said. "I don't know what all the emotionalism over in-lieu parking is about. To restrict development simply on the basis of in-lieu parking would be to discourage free enterprise."

Kline was granted options for eight in-lieu parking spaces for an apartment complex he plans on Mission between Fifth and Sixth.

Sweeney asked for seven in-lieu parking spaces for four upstairs apartments and a lower story commercial/retail space for a structure he is building on Dolores between Seventh and Eighth.

Both applications were approved by the commission.

Kline also asked for a reduction of two of 10 parking spaces he is required to provide. That application was continued and referred to the Land Use Committee.

A suggestion by Commissioner Swain that the commission ask the City Council to re-evaluate in-lieu parking in Carmel was referred back to the Land Use Committee.

"I think we are being derelict in not looking at our long-range planning concerning parking," Swain declared.

> 'To restrict development simply on the basis of in-lieu parking would be to discourage free enterprise.'

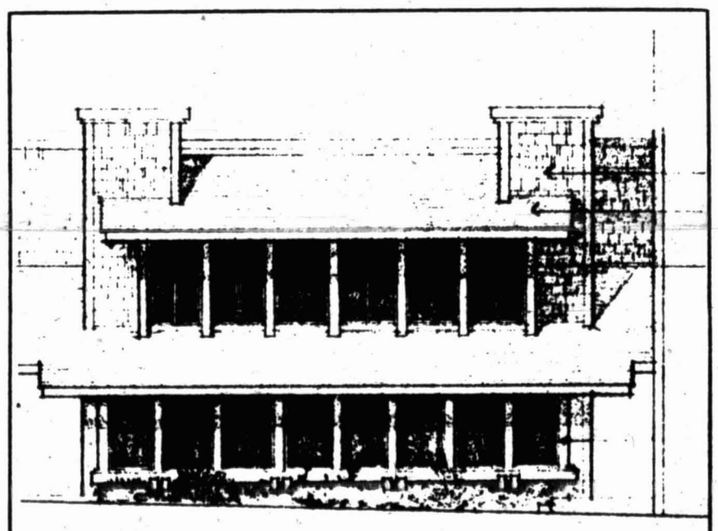
"I don't believe in in-lieu parking at all," Commissioner John Logan said. "There just isn't anything here (in the city code) to prevent it."

Commissioner Anne Woolworth said she was concerned about the residential parking shortage.

Fees collected for in-lieu parking from Kline and Sweeney would "go a long way" toward developing parking at North Field at Sunset Center, according to Chairman Griggs.



CARMEL PLANNING COMMISSION granted concept approval for an apartment complex/commercial building proposed by Thomas Sweeney of Carmel at its May 28 meeting. The structure, which would be on Dolores between Seventh and Eighth, will include a 3,000-square-foot commercial space on the lower level and four apartments on the upper. The building would be on a 40- by 100-foot lot if the City Council issues a permit for construction. Sweeney was also granted a variance for seven "in-lieu" parking spaces. Conditions for variance include a requirement that no fees be accepted by the city until final approval of the development is granted by the Design and Review Board, and that payment of fees be received before a building permit is issued.

New produce store approved; fight continues to keep it out

A BEHIND-THE-SCENES EFFORT is underway to prevent the leasing of the former Arco service station at San Carlos and Seventh by a produce store called Peaches-N-Cream, now in negotiations with owner James Burgess of Carmel.

An application to alter the Arco building for the produce store was approved by the Carmel Planning Commission May 28, with the condition the store get a business license before making alterations.

A license had not been obtained by the time of the meeting. The first opportunity for Peaches-N-Cream to acquire one will be today, when the City License and Review Board meets.

Mayor Barney Laiolo said he has been contacted by two people who have offered to buy the lease from Peaches-N-Cream. Laiolo did not identify them.

•

MEL PETERSON, representing the owners of Peaches-N-Cream, showed commissioners photographs of a store the company owns in Cupertino.

Asked by Commissioner Sandy Swain if there is any chance the gasoline allocation for the Arco station might be preserved if Peaches-N-Cream were to move in, Peterson replied: "My client is not in the gasoline business."

Peterson is a real estate broker.

"Arco removed the gas pumps the day after the prior lease expired (May 14," he said.

Although gasoline storage tanks are still there, removal is expected if Peaches-N-Cream acquires the lease.

Peterson described Peaches-N-Cream as a "full-service produce operation" which will carry canned goods, bulk grains, natural food and dairy products.

"This is not a health food store, however," Peterson emphasized.

The store will also carry flowers and plants as a secondary part of the busines, he added.

"My overriding fantasy during the discussions of this project has been one of another Orange Julius in Carmel," Commissioner Don Davidson said.

"I am concerned about the appearance of the business."

Approval of the application for alterations by Peaches-N-Cream was approved by the commission "without jubilation," according to Chairman Robert Stephenson.

•

DISCUSSION OF the gasoline allocation at the Arco station followed approval of the application.

"I would say the allocation has been lost," Stephenson said.

Peterson said that not only has the Arco station lost its allocation, but Arco itself has lost its government allocation for Carmel.

Merv Sutton of Nielsen Brothers Market asked how those who object to a business in Carmel could make their sentiments known to city officials.

"A business license is not a restrictive control," Stephenson replied.

As long as a business meets standards established in the City Code in making application for a business license, the application cannot be denied, Sutton was told.

Nielsen's is now on Dolores near Eighth. The new store will be on the corner of San Carlos and Seventh, diagonally across the street from Peach-N-Cream.

Sutton said that if Peaches-N-Cream does take over the Arco location, other similar businesses in the neighborhood area will suffer, including his.

Design is rejected for replacing theater

CARMEL ARCHITECT Alan Turpen will develop a new design to submit to the City Planning Commission, after his design for a structure to replace Carmel Village Theater with six apartments and three shops was rejected May 28.

Nick Pecora, who along with Ed Dickenson and Ted Reisch are owner/operators of the theater, expressed disappointment with the commission action.

"We are in the process of redesigning," Pecora said. "There seemed to be a strong feeling in the Planning Commission Design and Review Committee that our design was not in accord with the wishes of the community."

Owners could have appealed the Planning Commission decision to the City Council instead of resubmitting their design application to planning commissioners.

City Councilman Howard Brunn, one of four owners of the theater property, declined comment on the Planning Commission action.

"I would probably have to step down should the decision be appealed to the City Council," Brunn said.

Planning Department Director Robert Griggs said the chance of the appeal succeeding in the council was slim.

Carmel real estate agent Jack Martin, another owner of the property, said he was "appalled" that Commissioner John Logan would vote against the design presented by Turpen simply because he (Logan) did not like it.

"That is a matter of personal taste," Martin said, "but, I guess that is Carmel."

Art Strasburger and Jimmy Doud of Carmel are also co-owners of the property.

The plan was originally submitted to the commission Feb. 20. It was continued three times before finally being denied May 28, forcing a change in the concept sought by owners.

Commissioners Logan and Anne Woolworth objected to the appearance of the exterior. Dr. Donald Davidson expressed concern that storage space for apartment tenants might be used as commercial storage for the downstairs shops.

Commissioner Sandy Swain complained that if the conversion is permitted, Carmel will no longer have a movie theater downtown.

"I think the design is commendable and would be a welcome addition to the area," Chairman Robert Stephenson said.

Director Griggs said the commission should be concerned only with the exterior design and not take other factors into consideration.

"I find the angled facade out of place in Carmel," Logan said. "It is inharmonious with other structures in the immediate vicinity and looks bizarre."

Commissioner Davidson said he was "irritated" that he could not have a rendering he could understand, referring to Turpen's drawing.

"We have continued this application several times and the same rendering keeps coming back," Davidson said.

Davidson asked to see a scale model.

Commissioner Woolworth said she objected to the "San Francisco bay window" effect of the upper story, which projects out over the lower level.

NEVER ARGUE WITH SUCCESS

There is a sound philosophy based on the premise: "Never argue with success." If you have the urge to invest in real estate, listen to what some of the most successful investors have to say about it.

Andrew Carnegie: "Ninety percent of all millionaires become so through owning real estate. More money has been made in real estate than in all industrial investments combined. The wise young man or wage-earner invests his money in real estate."

Marshall Field: "Buying real estate is not only the best way, the quickest way, and the safest way, but the only way to become wealthy."

John D. Rockefeller: "The big fortunes in the future will be made in real estate."

John Jacob Astor: (He's a little more specific.) "Buy on the fringe and wait. Buy land near a growing city! Buy real estate when other people want to sell. Hold what you buy."

Six-period day approved for Carmel schools

THE CARMEL UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT Board of Education approved a six-period day for Carmel Middle and Carmel High schools May 28.

Holding to a promise it made parents earlier this year, the school board decided to reinstate six periods at Middle School, and retain the present six-period schedule at the high school for the 1980-81 school year.

The action, on a unanimous vote, was the first major decision of the board in preparing the district's 1980-81 budget.

Optional six periods at both schools will cost an additional $83,539 for teachers' salaries and busing.

Staff was directed to schedule six periods for 70 percent of the students at Middle School and 60 percent at the high school. The percentages were based on a survey of students that determined the approximate number who will opt for six periods this September.

Middle School, which was cut back to five periods last year, will have an optional sixth period for seventh- and eighth-grade students; it will be offered to sixth-graders for one semester only.

The board discussed at length whether to schedule Middle School's sixth period at the beginning or end of the day. It decided to place the sixth period at the end of the day, mainly to avoid a conflict with music courses during "O" period, the first period.

A sixth period in the afternoon would cost an additional $17,000 for busing. Additional busing will be required if the extra period is in the morning.

•

HENRY AVILA, director of the music program, said his courses would suffer if other electives were offered during the morning "O" period.

"Most of my O-period students are academic," he said. "If you offer language classes in the morning, they won't take music."

Moving music courses to the end of the day as an alternative would not be feasible either, he said. It would conflict with his teaching schedule at the high school.

The board decided it would be worth the additional cost to schedule sixth period in the afternoon, although it directed the administrative staff to study the impact on the music program if the added period was in the morning.

Parents had asked during school board meetings earlier this year that the board restore six periods at Middle School at any cost. They wanted Middle School students to have as full a schedule as possible to prepare for high school. They also wanted courses and programs returned that had been trimmed back by the reduction to five periods.

The board last year reduced Middle School to five periods as part of major budget cuts.

Four new members elected to the board in November promised to restore six periods.

An optional six-period day was recommended by the Budget Advisory Committee in its May 16 report to the trustees (school board).

The 25-member committee was comprised of teachers, parents, students and administrative staff.

It advised against a mandatory six periods for all students, noting that it was not financially feasible at this time. It would cost $202,000, or nearly as much as the district needed to trim from its preliminary budget.

An optional sixth period offered to the percentage of students who opted for it in the survey, and scheduled at the end of the day would save the district $114,000, the committee noted.

Offering six periods of shorter duration was not advisable, the committee decided, unless it was shown to be "fair and equitable" to the teachers. The committee recommended that any shortening of the class times not be considered until a study was made of practices in other school districts.

•

THE CARMEL MIDDLE SCHOOL FACULTY asked in a letter to the school board dated May 20 that the five-period schedule and regular 55-minute periods be retained. Their letter notes that the faculty voted 23-2 May 14 to support five periods and no reduction in class length.

The faculty maintained that if six periods were restored, the district should replace teachers who were laid off last year. It would not be fair to accommodate six periods by spreading the added workload over the current number of teachers, they state. Nor would it be fair to students to shorten class times, especially in science courses where set-up time is required, or in other courses where the optimum learning situation depends on the longest possible period.

Their letter states: "It is the unanimous recommendation of the faculty that this item (six periods) not be placed on the negotiating table for the following reasons:

- "Last year the board chose to cut the budget by reducing the program offerings and, therefore, requiring fewer teachers.
- "If the board wishes to reinstate the programs, it has a moral and legal obligation to replace the teachers as well."

Rare coins displayed in Carmel

Rare coins and precious metals with a value of $1 million will be on display Saturday and Sunday, June 7-8 at the sixth annual Coin Show sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Coin Club.

Carmel Valley High School Class of 1980

This is the first high school graduating class to have commencement exercises in Carmel Valley. Last night Carmel Valley High School, formerly called Carmel Continuation High School, had its graduation at the school off Schulte Road. The seniors made the sign in the photo for their alma mater.

Carmel Valley High School has first commencement in Valley

THE FIRST HIGH SCHOOL graduation ceremony ever held in Carmel Valley was last night.

Carmel Valley High School had its ceremony on the school campus.

Officially called Carmel Continuation High School until last December, the district school is for students with problems adjusting to conventional education according to Principal Jim Kohnke.

Students at CVHS were previously graduated from Carmel High School.

Some students at CVHS before Nov. 15, 1979, have the option of graduating from Carmel High School. Those at CVHS after that date took their diplomas at their alma mater.

Traditional caps and gowns were worn for the ceremony. Each teacher said something about each graduate as they accepted their diplomas.

A creative writing award, given in memory of Valli Cook, a former CVHS student killed in an auto accident in April, was won by Tricia Ingram.

"Valli was a good student and was extremely creative," Kohnke said. "Her death deeply affected those who knew her."

PADRE SPORTS

THE CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL team lost 3-2 to Serra High of San Jose in defense of its Central Coast Section championship.

The game was played with a very hard wind blowing and on a very poor field.

Carmel led 2-0 after the first inning, but could not put more runs across the plate.

The team ended up with a 17-6-1 record.

•

AT THE REGION IV TRACK meet, three CHS athletes did very well: Therese Ostrander, Duffy Carolan and Carl Still.

Ostrander placed second in the shotput and fourth in the discus and will advance to the Central Coast Section meet.

Carolan would up fourth in the 110-yard hurdles and will also go to the CCS meet.

Still had three fifth-place finishes. They were in the long jump, triple jump and high jump.

•

ON THURSDAY, May 29, several awards were given for athletics in the Carmel High School Gymnasium.

Arthur Strum was awarded the best boy athlete. Strum was all-league in the three sports he played (water polo, basketball, swimming) two years in a row. He was also chosen "Most Valuable Player" by his teammates in those sports this year. Strum will attend Stanford University next fall, and will continue swimming there.

Peter Kelly received the award for scholarship, academic and leadership. Kelly will also attend Stanford next fall.

Therese Ostrander was selected best girl athlete by the coaches. She was all-league in field hockey and track this year. She was chosen "Most Valuable Performer" by her teammates in those sports. She will attend a junior college in Pennsylvania next year.

Stacey Hicks received the Sportsmanship Award. She was league champion in the 100- and 200-yard freestyle this year in swimming and also the team captain. She will attend either UC Berkeley or the University of Oregon next year and continue swimming.

Cory Bliesner received a $500 scholarship from the Monterey Jaycees as a student-athlete.

It was also anounced that Sarah Thamer had received a four-year scholarship to play basketball at UC Berkeley.

•

THIS WEEK'S "ATHLETE OF THE WEEK" is Curtis Jones.

He is a senior on the golf team.

Jones had qualified to play as an individual at the Region IV golf playoffs at Rancho Canada. He shot 73 there to put him in a tie with another golfer, whom he beat in a playoff to advance to the CCS playoffs at Pebble Beach. Jones was joined at the Region IV playoffs by teammate Andy Whitacre, who missed the playoff by one stroke, shooting 74.

In the CCS playoffs, Jones shot a 78 at his home course to advance to the Northern California golf playoffs.

Jones will attend Brigham Young University next fall and continue his golf there.

SPCA has cats, kittens

The Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is observing the sixth national Adopt-a-Cat Month during June, in hopes of finding good homes for kittens and cats at the SPCA shelter on the Monterey-Salinas highway.

"A feline population boom happens each spring," John Tiernan, director of the shelter said "We have dozens of cats and kittens waiting to be adopted."

The SPCA is offering an adoption kit to anyone who adopts a kitten or cat during June. It includes a book on cat care and coupons for free cat food. The SPCA is also offering free cat tags and collars in June.

TURN OFF THE JUICE AND TURN BACK THE TANKERS.

California depends heavily on imported oil for the production of electricity. And the more electricity we use, the more foreign oil we need to produce it.

As a result, every time OPEC raises its prices, electric rates go up, too. The cost of oil today is more than ten times what it was in 1970. The cost of electricity is rising with it. And the more you use, the more you pay per unit.

But there is something we can do about it.

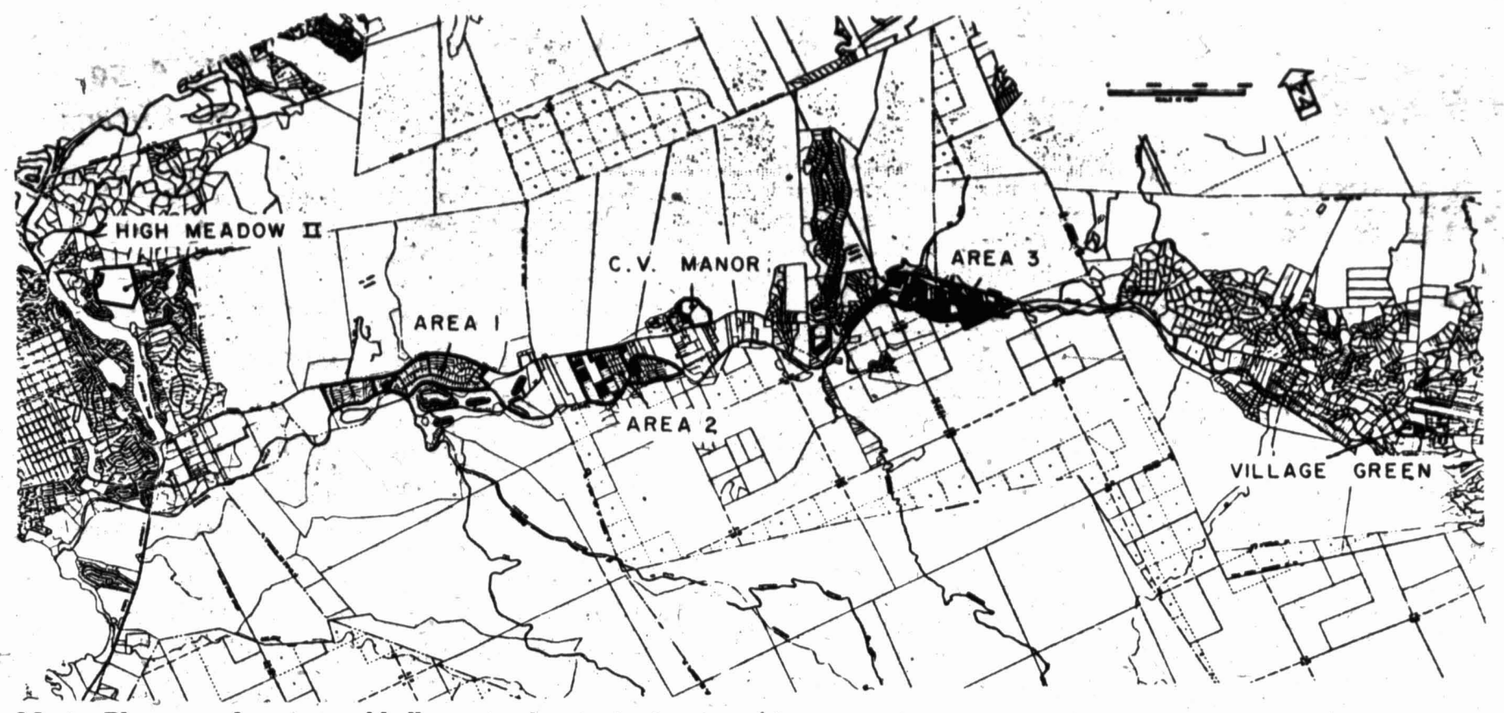
By using less electricity, we lessen our need for foreign oil. By conserving energy, we help hold down electric rates.

And if we start thinking differently about energy now, there may come a time when we won't need all that foreign oil. PG and E



Master Plan amendments would allow more houses in the area above.

Changes in Master Plan would allow more CV homes

MAJOR AMENDMENTS TO THE CARMEL VALLEY MASTER PLAN allowing for increased residential development will be considered by the county Planning Commission June 11.

Commissioners will rule on changes in the zoning map to allow for increased housing density in two proposed subdivisions and three specific areas of the Valley.

The changes are requested by developers of the proposed Village Greens II and High Meadows II subdivisions, owners of Carmel Valley Manor, and other residential property owners.

Owners of Tantamount Theater have withdrawn their request for rezoning behind Carmel Valley Village after deciding not to relocate the theater there.

Ed DeMars, director of the county Planning Department, outlined the requests in a May 27 memorandum to the Planning Commission. He warned that in some cases rezoning would either set precedent for the entire Valley or go against the intent of the Master Plan.

The commissioners are cautioned, for example, that proposed rezoning in the Scarlett Road area from 2.5-acre to one-acre densities would not be consistent with the rural character of the immediate area.

At issue in the High Meadow II request is whether an exemption to the Master Plan policy against building on steep slopes can be granted.

"None (of the requested changes) appears to be subject to simple policy interpretation except for the issue of Carmel Valley Manor," DeMars states.

Owners of Carmel Valley Manor, a home for the elderly, propose an additional three units. DeMars advises that because care homes are not specifically reflected in the Master Plan, the proposed addition would not require an amendment, but only a simple change in zoning and use permit.

The other changes will require full consideration as Master Plan amendments, he advises, adding that the amendments will require approval from the Board of Supervisors.

Supervisors are scheduled to rule on the amendments in July, after action by the commissioners.

In three residential areas zoned for 2.5-acre lots, commissioners will consider rezoning to one-acre denisty.

Demars notes that those three areas were marked by the supervisors for "infilling" when they adopted the Master Plan. Supervisors directed commissioners to look at those residential neighborhoods with acre-lots and decide if they could support subdividing larger, adjacent parcels to one-acre lots.

•

THE THREE AREAS to be considered for infilling are all along the south side of Carmel Valley Road: Area 1 from Via Mallorca to Brookdale Drive; Area 2 in the Valley Hills vicinity from Valley Hills shopping center to Schulte Road; and Area 3 around Scarlett Road from Robinson Canyon Road to about 2,000 feet west of Rancho Fiesta.

DeMars notes that Area 1 is almost fully subdivided into one-acre lots, and that infilling would be unnecessary for the two remaining parcels larger than two acres: Quentel's Evergreen Farm and land owned by California-American Water Co.

Quentel's farm was sold recently, and DeMars notes that the new owners intend to retain it as a tree farm.

Cal-Am's parcel is proposed for a well and water treatment plant, and does not involve subdivision.

Area 2, with lot sizes ranging from one to four acres, would be appropriate for infilling, DeMars advises. "It appears that about 75 percent of the area has been subdivided to less than two-acre parcels, with the larger remaining parcels scattered throughout."

Area 3 around Scarlett Road has been extensively subdivided, although generally not to parcels as small as an acre.

"Much of the area," DeMars notes, "has either stabilized at two- to five-acre parcels or is now designated for a two-acre density for agricultural use."

The character of that area is more rural than residential because of local preference and natural constraints, and infilling at a one-acre density does not seem appropriate, DeMars advises.

•

THE PROPOSED REZONING to allow the 111-lot High Meadow II subdivision requires careful scrutiny, DeMars states.

It would involve an exemption from the Carmel Valley Master Plan's all-important slope/density formula.

"It (the exemption) may have the unintended and inappropriate effect of applying elsewhere in the Valley," DeMars states.

High Meadows II was planned in the 1960s as part of the approved High Meadows subdivision. The Planning Commission in 1957 had adopted a policy for residential density that allowed the project on one-acre lots.

But when High Meadows II was not pursued, the 72-acre parcel reverted to acreage and was later designated for residential development, one-acre minimum, in the new Master Plan.

DeMars notes that the proposed 111 lots on 72 acres is more than allowed by the Master Plan.

Based on the Master Plan slope/density formula, only 27 lots would be allowed.

To accommodate the proposal, the Master Plan would need to be amended to: Designate the land for a density greater than one unit per acre; and the slope/density policies would have to be defined as not applying to the new density designation.

The developer of Village Greens II — 31 single-family units proposed for 5.28 acres on the western outskirts of Carmel Valley Village — owns two small adjacent parcels that he wants to include in the project.

The parcels are designated for commercial use. The developer wants them rezoned residential.

DeMars noted that the Master Plan converted a large amount of peripheral, commercially zoned land of the Village to exclusively residential use (including the Village Green site).

"It was felt that local commercial zoning was excessive," DeMars explains, although the developer's two adjacent parcels were not included in the conversion, and remained commercially zoned.

The two parcels would have probably been converted to residential, he continues, if it was known when the Master Plan was being developed that the land would be included in the Village Green projects.

He cautioned however, against automatically granting a rezoning to residential.

He stated: "In retrospect, it appears that the commercial area may have been overly restricted, and vacant commercial land is now rather limited."

CV Master Plan's loophole

By STEVE HELLMAN

A GLARING LOOPHOLE has been found in the new Carmel Valley Master Plan that could render its 2,500-unit housing quota easy prey to adventurous developers.

A short-handed Monterey County Planning Commission ruled last week that moderate-income housing is not subject to the Master Plan's density requirements or allocation system — two bulwarks of the 2,500-unit quota.

The moderate-income housing, however, is to be subtracted from the quota.

The quota allows for 2,500 new units within the next 20 years, with no more than 125 units to be allocated each year, and no more than 25 per year to any one development.

Conceivably, in light of last week's ruling, the quota could be used up with moderate-income housing, while the more restricted standard subdivision lots would be given short shrift.

The only constraints will be financial losses associated with building moderate-income units, sewage disposal requirements, floodplain policies and the many other policies of the Master Plan — policies that didn't appear to be a hindrance last week to at least one Carmel Valley developer.

The unprecedented ruling came on Richard Pryor's proposed 252-lot Holt Ranch, located on 473 acres south of Carmel River and west of Robinson Canyon Road.

Pryor wants 176 lots for standard housing and 76 one-third-acre lots for moderate-income units.

He told commissioners the moderate-income units would be about 1,400 square feet, have two bedrooms and sell for about $65,000.

Although he said he would lose $500,000 to $2 million on the moderate-income units, his intention was to provide affordable housing for teachers, firemen and others who work in the Valley.

Planning Department staff advised the commission to postpone a ruling and allow time to study the proposal.

DENSITY REQUIREMENTS, staff noted, would allow only 189 lots on Pryor's 473 acres. Much of the land is on steep slopes, and the Master Plan slope/density formula denies density credits for land with more than 30 percent slope.

It was also noted that the county requires a developer to set aside only a minimum 15 percent of his units for low- and moderate-income housing. In Pryor's case, it would be 26 units instead of the 76 proposed.

Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon said Pryor could propose as many as 200 moderate-income units; they would still be exempt from density requirements.

Slimmon warned strongly that the ruling on Pryor's proposal would set the tone for the rest of the Master Plan and decisions on other developments.

Wesley Arvig, county planner in charge of subdivisions, also cautioned against a ruling without further study.

He said, "There is a big question over how many of the moderate-income lots would be located in the floodplain, and therefore prohibited."

Pryor replied that 76 units on one-third-acre lots was his preferred alternative. Otherwise, he could either pay an "in-lieu" fee as allowed by the county, or build the units in another part of the county where they wouldn't benefit Valley residents.

In place of the moderate-income lots he would also put three-acre ranch estates selling for more than $300,000, he said.

He said that on the question of increased density, his project will look like a rural ranch compared to his neighbor across the road — Carmel Valley Ranch — with 500 condominiums, a 100-unit hotel and golf course.

THE COMMISSION, with only five of nine members present, voted 3-2 to find Pryor's preliminary map proposal consistent with density requirements.

Commissioners Walter Basham, Calvin Reaves and Marc Del Piero voted in Pryor's favor, although Reaves expressed some reluctance, leaving only two solid votes behind the precedent-setting decision.

Reaves noted that Pryor's proposal did not include a mix of low- and moderate-income housing, but only moderate. He said, "I sense there's some element of circumvention here, but I can't put my finger on it."

Del Piero brushed aside warnings that the ruling would have impact throughout the valley. He insisted it was tailored to Pryor's project, and that all other developments will be reviewed on their merits.

He told commissioners the moderate-income units would be about 1,400 square feet, have two bedrooms and sell for about $65,000.

Chief factor, Del Piero said, was the bounty in moderate-income housing that Pryor's proposal would provide.

He said of the staff's cautions on consistency: "It seems incredible that there could be a question of inconsistency with building low- and moderate-income units in Carmel Valley."

Chairman Joseph Sullivan and Commissioner Peter Cailotto voted against the consistency finding.

Sullivan said he had "serious reservations about its impact on the 2,500-unit quota."

Cailotto said simply, "This ruling has very serious impacts."

Among the absent commissioners were those from Carmel Valley and Carmel: William Peters and Gary Varga.

Contacted later, Peters said he doubted the ruling will affect other proposals, although he conceded its impact on the 2,500-unit quota "is a real problem."

"With most proposals that come in, the densities will be below that allowed, so that added moderate-income units will conform."

Highest priority for moderate-income units is to get them built, he said, although he admitted, "The more of those built, the fewer we'll have of the regular units under the quota."

He insisted that Pryor's application was unusual and that few developers will try to exceed the 15 percent for moderate-income units.

He added that Pryor must still submit his proposal for review by the Citizens Subdivision Evaluation Committee, and then formal processing through the Planning Commission and final approval from the Board of Supervisors.

"The number of moderate-income units in his proposal still depends on septic tank constraints and the amount of area that lies within the floodplain," he said.

FRIENDS OF THE CARMEL UNIFIED SCHOOLS (FOCUS) has kicked off a major fund-raising drive to establish direct financial involvement in community schools.

Patterned after college and university foundations, FOCUS is making an appeal for tax-free donations.

Donors can earmark the money for specific classes or curriculum areas, or it will go to augment financially-strapped programs in music, athletics and creative arts, among others.

FOCUS also intends to encourage more community participation in school activities.

Overall, its goal is to tap the financial and professional wealth of the Carmel area and maintain for the Carmel Unified School District a support foundation like that at major colleges.

The start of FOCUS' drive was announced last week in a mailing to 14,000 registered voters in the school district.

The mailer outlined the district's financial squeeze, its loss of programs since Proposition 13 in 1978 and its needs.

Donations of $25 to $1,000 were requested for memberships in FOCUS.

A major movie premiere, jazz concert and other events are planned.

•

The Man With Bogart's Face, a movie to be released nationwide in October, will be shown at 8 p.m, Friday, June 13, at Sunset Theater in Carmel. 20th Century-Fox donated the movie for the special screening.

Tickets are $15, which covers an after-theater party, wine, cheese and cider. The party will include live entertainment. Tickets can be purchased through FOCUS, P.O. Box 221088, Carmel, Calif. 93922, or by phoning 624-1714.

Formed last year, FOCUS may be the first organization of its kind in the state for public schools. It is an independent, nonprofit foundation with a five-member board of directors.

Directors are: Richard A. Falge, a certified public accountant; William G. Doolittle, an investment broker; Robert A. Giraudo, a bank manager; Nancy N. Sutton, an owner of Nielsen Bros. Market in Carmel; and Francis "Skip" Lloyd, a lawyer, who is board president.

Mrs. Sutton, Doolittle and Lloyd are graduates of Carmel High School.

Lloyd said FOCUS was formed in the spirit of self-help. The idea for it came in the wake of funding cutbacks, he said, brought on by Proposition 13, the Serrano/Priest mandates for equal education throughout the state, and declining enrollment in Carmel schools.

Dan Yurkovich, the school district director of community services and its liaison to FOCUS, said the foundation will offer innovative, flexible support to the schools in a time of severe fiscal constraint.

"If we raise enough money," he said, "it's possible to invest and use the interest for the schools, and in that way have a secure, revolving fund."

Donations also can be earmarked for specific departments, for example, drama, photography, music or girls' athletics.

Noting that Stanford University relies on its benefactors, many of them not even alumni, but people simply interested in education, Yurkovich said, "Why can't people give to their high school?

"It's never been done, but what's to say the time hasn't come? The main thing is that FOCUS has us talking again about our schools," said Yurkovich, who has worked for the district 22 years.

•

KEN WHITE, president of the school board, said FOCUS is the wave of the future for public education.

"I see us as the lead for districts throughout the state," he said. "We can bring back local control for our schools, put money into programs that our community wants without being tied to state and federal mandates."

Nick Nicholson, principal of Carmel Middle School, said FOCUS money could be especially beneficial to his campus.

"The money could help bring back intramural and after-school sports. We have the equipment, but we can't afford the program, the transportation and the teachers' pay," he said.

Middle School has one of the most modern and complete industrial arts shops in the state, he said, but it sits idle, used only one period a day because of the cutback last year to five periods from six.

That reduction cut into many electives — the music, art and other classes that often motivate students to remain in school, he said.

Nicholson said FOCUS money could be used to firmly re-establish Middle School's six-period day.

(The school board decided last week to restore an optional six periods for about 70 percent of Middle School students.)

Phil Smith, principal of Tularcitos Elementary School, said FOCUS money could go to maintenance and sorely-needed building restoration at his school.

Dan Stevenson, principal of Carmel High School, said the money could help pay off a $20,000 deficit in the athletics program and to buy a video recorder.

THIS INDUSTRIAL ARTS classroom at Carmel Middle School is used for only one period a day. Nick Nicholson, principal, said budget cuts prevent staffing the room for more periods. In addition, he said, with the school on a five-period day now, many students cannot find time in their shorter schedules to make use of the room.

Summer band classes scheduled

A four-week program of summer band classes directed by Henry Avila, music instructor for the Carmel Unified School District, has been scheduled from June 16-July 3 for students now in the third grade through Middle School.

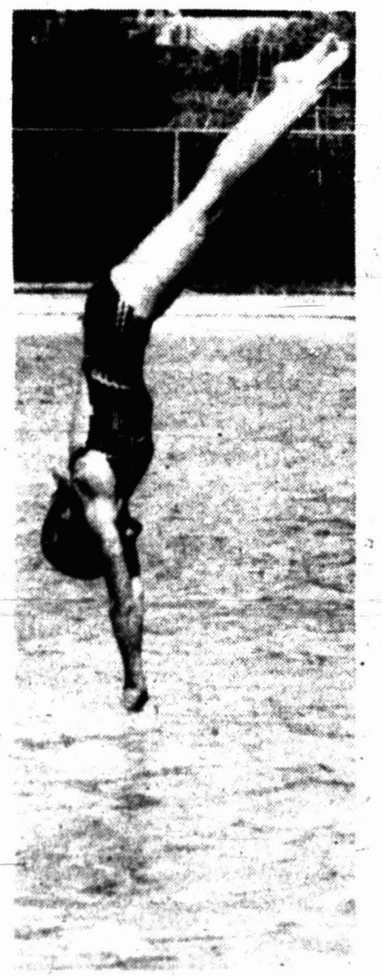
The cost is $25 for each course. Classes will be held Mondays and Thursdays at River School; Tuesdays and Fridays at Tularcitos School; and Wednesdays only at Carmel High School.

To be offered at River and Tularcitos Schools are: beginning woodwind and strings, including clarinet, saxophone and flute; beginning bass and drums, including trumpet, trombone, tuba, and French horn; and intermediate and advanced band for students who have played at least one year or more.

Carmel High School will offer classes in beginning instruments, and stage band for grades 5-9.

Some instruments (except flutes) are available for student use at no charge, while summer instrumental rental plans are available from local music dealers. Transportation will not be provided for the program.

For more information call Avila at 625-2911 from 3-4 p.m.



ALYSA HAWKINS practices a dive getting ready for this summer's diving season. Boys and girls 6 to 18 interested in the Carmel Barracuda diving team may contact coach Robert Horn at 373-7794 or 624-1714. Diving lessons begin June 16. Registration will take place from 1 to 3 p.m., June 10 and 12 at Carmel High School Adult School Office and at Carmel Valley Community Pool.

Carmel schools to tackle budget items

MAJOR BUDGET items, including music programs, psychological services and bus transportation will be considered by the Board of Education of the Carmel school district June 10.

The trustees (school board) will act on recommendations of the Budget Advisory Committee, and begin preparing a tentative budget for the 1980-81 school year.

The tentative budget will be considered for approval at the trustees' June 24 meeting. A final budget will be hammered out through July and adopted probably in mid-August.

The 25-member Budget Advisory Committee, comprised of parents, teachers, students and staff, submitted its recommendations in May. It prioritized the major items to be considered in the budget process, noting the amount of added or decreased spending each represents.

The committee's basic task was to identify adjustments to the budget that would result in a $228,000 reduction in spending from the basic, preliminary budget prepared in March. The objective of the reduction is to provide the district with $180,000 ending balance in 1981. The ending balance is essentially the district's contingency fund.

In its eight-page report, the committee analyzed major items, prioritized them and also provided several hypothetical choices that would lead to a $228,000 savings.

Chairman Al Crosby notes in the report that the committee based its calculations on this key assumption:

• That there would be a 6.5 percent compensation increase for all employees of the district. For each additional one percent increase, it would cost $50,000. Compensation increases above 6.5 percent would mean reductions elsewhere in the district's expenditures; the net effect must be a $228,000 savings.

Prioritizing items on a scale of one to four, the committee ranked optional six periods at Middle School and the high school a Priority 2. (See story elsewhere in this newspaper.)

The committee's other major considerations and priorities were:

• Reduce administrative staff according to a long-range plan developed this year. The five-year plan calls for reduction in accountant and counseling services that would save the district $31,000 — Priority 1.

• Replace a maintenance worker vacancy to help with "obvious maintenance shortfalls," although if the replacement is held back it would have about $29,000 — Priority 1.

• Retain the present staffing in the music program with two instructors and one teaching director, while recognizing that the program would benefit greatly from additional teachers. The district has cut back the music staff from five to three positions. By not hiring an additional teacher, the district could save $22,000 — Priority 1.

• Consider changes in the student/teacher staffing ratio. The committee declined to assign a priority to adjustment of the staffing ratio, noting that the item is negotiated between the teachers and the district. The report noted that an increase of one increment in the present ratio of 28/1 would result in a $69,000 reduction.

• Increase psychological services by one-half a position. Increases in the number of special education students and workload on the district psychologist were noted. Cost of one-half psychologist position would be about $15,000 — Priority 1.

• Increase staffing at Captain Cooper Elementary School to avoid shifting students. Addition of a 0.4 full-time equivalent position would cost $11,000 — Priority 1.

Increase staff and curriculum development at a cost of $3,000 — Priority 2.

• Increase mandated language arts testing for $1,000 — Priority 1.

• Increase employee mileage allowance to $0.185 per mile. While the present mileage compensation is $0.15, the increase would make the district consistent with IRS allowances. Cost overall was not noted — Priority 2.

• Increase custodial staff at Tularcitos at a cost of about $7,000 — Priority 4.

• Increase support to Monterey Peninsula Youth Project. Cost, $9,000 — Priority 4.

• Decrease kindergarten day from five hours. Additional transportation costs for this would be $12,000 — Priority 3.

• Hire a librarian for Middle School. The report notes that this need was identified by the Middle School Site Council, which has observed that the library is becoming obsolete. Cost would be $22,000 for a certificated librarian — Priority 3.

• Hire a library aide for Middle School. An alternative to hiring a librarian, it would cost $10,000 — Priority 2.

• Charge a transportation fee, although the committee stopped short of suggesting an actual fee since a separate transportation committee is reviewing that. It was not ranked.

• Increase noon supervision at Carmel Middle School, the high school and the elementary schools. Cost at the elementary school level would be $2,000 — Priority 1.

CELEBRATING HER 100th BIRTHDAY Wednesday, May 28, was Isabel Emms, a resident of Carmel Convalescent Hospital. She was honored by other residents and staff with a birthday cake, punch and songs. Mrs. Emms was born on a family farm near Grindstone City, Mich., long before there was a City of Carmel. Letters of congratulations were received from President Carter, Rep. Leon Panetta and Gov. Brown.

Rountree-Conkey wedding is held

The Carmel Highlands home of Cedric Rowntrees was the setting May 24 for the wedding of their son, Lester, to Margaret Conkey of Philadelphia.

Officiating was the Rev. Jay Bartow, pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Monterey.

Attendants were the bride's daughter, Alice Chandra Fritz, and the groom's daughter, Erika Rowntree.

A reception followed at the home of the bride and groom in Santa Cruz.

A native of Carmel, Rowntree is the grandson and namesake of the late Mrs. Lester Rowntree, an authority on native plants. Until her death last year, she lived in the house where the wedding was held. His grandfather, Bernard Rowntree, was a Carmel City Council member in the early 1940s.

Rowntree received his doctorate at University of Oregon. He is a professor of geography at San Jose State University.

Mrs. Rowntree is a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College. She has a doctorate in archeology from the University of Chicago, and has been teaching at the State University of New York, Binghamton. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Conkey of Philadelphia.

NOTICE INVITING SEALED PROPOSALS

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received by the District Board, Carmel Sanitary District, at the District Office, Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, Building No. 26358, San Carlos Agency Building, Carmel Rancho Lane, P.O. Box 221428, Carmel, California 93922, until 9:00 a.m. on 13 June, 1980, at which time they will be publicly opened and read for performing work as follows:

Pumping, hauling, and disposal of approximately 220 tons per week of sewage sludge from the Carmel Sanitary District's Water Pollution Control Facility at $_____ per ton. The District's Water Pollution Control Facility is located on the south side of the Carmel River approximately ½ mile west of Highway 1.

This work shall be done in accordance with the Sludge Hauling Proposal and Agreement, to which special reference is hereby made.

Pursuant to the Statutes of the State of California, the District Board has adopted the general prevailing rates for overtime and legal holidays in the locality in which the work is to be performed determined by the State Director of the Department of Industrial Relations.

It shall be incumbent upon the successful bidder to pay not less than the minimum hourly wages required by said Schedule of Wage Determinations to be paid to the various laborers and mechanics directly engaged in the performance of the work. In the event that any change in the above rates is made, said changed rates shall apply to this public project without adjustment in bid price.

The District reserves the right to reject any and all bids or to waive any irregularities or informalities in any bid or in the bidding.

The results of the bidding will be reported to the District Board at their regular meeting on Thursday, June 19, 1980; at which time the District may award the contract to the lowest responsible bidder as so reported; however, said District Board reserves its right to reject any or all bids and to waive irregularities of any bids.

No bidder shall withdraw his bid for a period of thirty (30) calendar days after the date set for the opening thereof.

Proposal and Agreement forms may be secured at no charge from Carmel Sanitary District, Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, San Carlos Agency Building, Carmel, California 93922.

Carmel River flood erosion suits expected

By STEVE HELLMAN

PROPERTY OWNERS IN CARMEL VALLEY are expected to file major lawsuits against Monterey County, charging it failed last winter to prevent massive erosion along the Carmel River.

The suits may also name California-American Water Co., which some residents have blamed for over-pumping its wells, thereby lowering the water table and killing vegetation that anchors the river banks.

High water Feb. 22-24 swept away huge sections of land along several stretches of the river, although the river never reached official flood level.

Robert Zobel, whose property behind Hacienda Hay and Feed Store suffered heavy losses, said last week he and several other property owners planned to file claims against the county.

The county's lack of assistance during and since the flooding is forcing the litigation, he said.

"The county hasn't told us anything about what it's going to cost to restore our land or when it's going to be done," Zobel said.

"The 100-day statute of limitations is going to expire soon," he said. "If we're going to get any relief from the county we have to file claims now."

•

A $500,000 CLAIM was filed against the county April 30 on behalf of Logar, Inc. of Monterey. Logar is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ray McWhorter. They ask that the county compensate for erosion on their 12-acre parcel immediately east of Schulte Road Bridge on the north side of the river.

The claim was filed by the Carmel Valley law firm of Stewart and Steiner.

It charges that a "significant portion" of the Logar land was eroded in February and March, and that the "erosion was a direct result of the actions and failure of various employees of the county to adequately care for Carmel River and its banks and environs."

Several unnamed employees and the county are also charged with failure to stop and check the erosion once it started.

Half the Logar land was damaged, the claim states. It asks $250,000 for lessening of property value and $250,000 for restoring lost acreage. The land is undeveloped.

The county is expected to reject the claim, forcing Logar to sue.

Deputy County Counsel David Laredo said last week the county Board of Supervisors has 45 days to respond to the claim, after which it is deemed denied.

"The fact that the board hasn't acted yet might indicate that it intends to ignore the claim," he said.

Melvin Steiner, representing Logar, said he expected the county to reject the claim as a matter of form, and that a suit would then be filed.

Meanwhile, Steiner said, evidence is being collected on the county's role and the actions of its employees during the flooding.

"We believe evidence will show that the county could have gone in sooner to protect the river banks and to significantly prevent the losses on the McWhorters' land," he said.

The county did not respond to damage on his clients' property until the erosion threatened the Schulte Road Bridge, he said. "When the bridge became endangered, they went in to shore up the bank."

The county Flood Control and Water Conservation District and its employees may be named in the suit.

Steiner said evidence could show the district failed to provide measures to prevent erosion.

"There's also indication that Cal-Am will be held responsible for erosion. Their wells have been blamed for lowering the water table and damaging the river bank vegetation," Steiner said.

Because many landowners were hit by erosion, Steiner said he assumed some will join the suit.

•

An estimated $1 million in real estate was swept away during the two-week period in February-March, reducing 100-foot setbacks to 25 feet and threatening several homes.

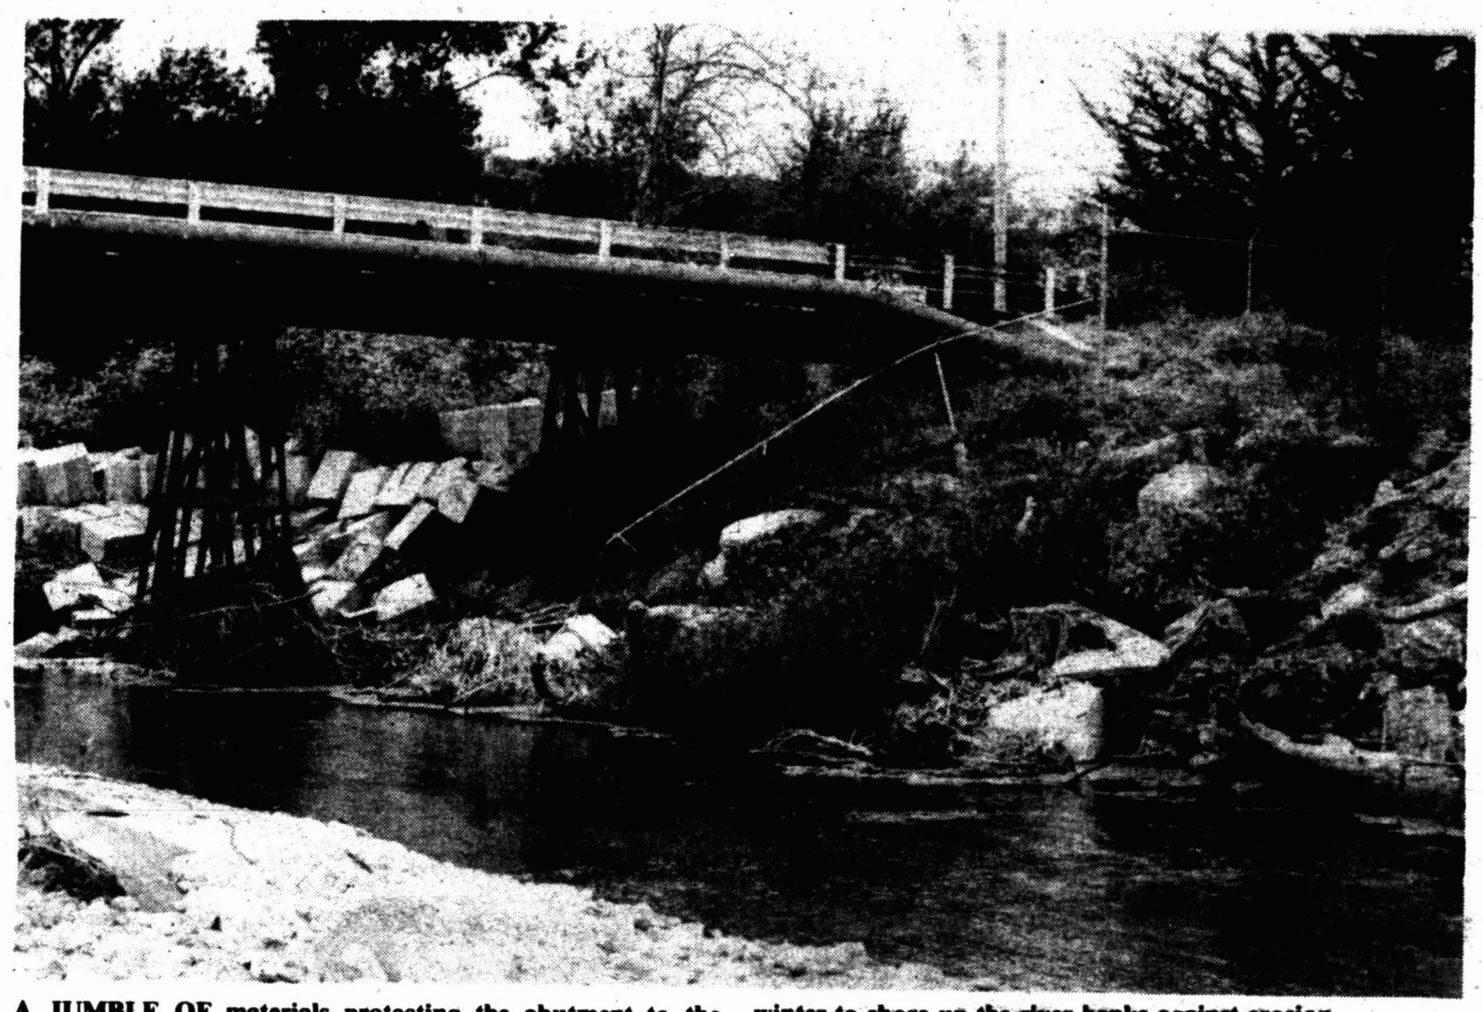
Residents pleaded during the height of the emergency for the county's assistance, and charged later it was lax in responding.

County emergency communications employees helped coordinate relief, calling in the California Conservation Corps, which provided crews for installing protective material.

The county Public Works Department offered engineering advice.

The only physical assistance from the county, however, was free sandbags.

In the wake of the damage, Zobel and many residents blamed Cal-Am. They charged that its wells, which serve the entire Monterey Peninsula, have overdrawn the water supply, lowering it below the root zone and killing the willows and cottonwoods vital to the health of the river banks.



A JUMBLE OF materials protecting the abutment to the Schulte Road Bridge are reminders of the frantic efforts this winter to shore up the river banks against erosion.

'We believe the county could have gone in sooner to protect the river banks . . .'

Pictures and eyewitness accounts were given county officials and directors of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, indicating erosion was found most often in areas next to Cal-Am wells.

Cal-Am has denied responsibility. Its officials stand by a 1978 report that absolves the water company from responsiblity for erosion along the river.

That report, however, has been discredited by several local hydrologists and river experts.

Extension is sought on application for wells

California American Water Co. has asked Monterey County for a 90-day extension on its application for four new wells in Carmel Valley.

Cal-Am General Manager Richard Sullivan said the extension will allow time for a series of community workshops on river bank erosion control and protection of riparian (river bank) vegetation.

The workshops are sponsored by the water company and the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, and will be organized through an executive committee of residents. The workshops begin June 28, and will conclude with a report to the county. Times and locations will be announced.

Oct. 25 is scheduled for the final decisions from the county Planning Commission on the use permit for the four wells. The use permit will also cover a proposed iron-removal plant on San Carlos Road.

Public hearings will be conducted on the use permit application before Oct. 25.

THE GAY 90s return to the Monterey Peninsula when the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School celebrates the 100th anniversary of the opening of the Del Monte Hotel this weekend. Events include a Centennial Tennis Tournament, with 32 teams of men's and women's doubles scheduled to play Friday through Sunday. From left to right are Anne Marie Strauss, co-tournament director; Mike McNeil, rules committee and prize chairman; Frank Johnson, NPS tennis pro and tournament player; and Lois Carwin, co-tournament director. The June 6-8 tournament includes celebrity pro-am matches Saturday and Sunday.

"Old" Del Monte Hotel to celebrate centennial

The 100th anniversary of the "old" Del Monte Hotel — now Herrmann Hall of the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School — will be celebrated Friday through Sunday, June 6-8. Scheduled events include golf and tennis tournaments, a grand ball, a sailing regatta and an outdoor pops concert by the Monterey County Symphony. The hotel and its grounds will be open to the public from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. all three days.

The history books tell us that the Del Monte Hotel was built in 100 days at a cost of more than $1 million by the Pacific Improvement Company — a holding company for Charles Crocker, Collis Huntington, Mark Hopkins and Leland Stanford — who also owned the Southern Pacific Railroad. It opened on June 3, 1880.

The hotel had more than 500 rooms and 250 acres of beautifully landscaped grounds, with more than 1,000 varieties of plant life, including an exotic cactus garden. Much of the present-day landscaping follows the early design.

In 1887, the Del Monte burned to the ground, to be rebuilt on an even grander scale by Charles Crocker, who died the following year. In 1924, much of the hotel again burned, and the "new" Hotel Del Monte opened on May 8, 1926.

It became the place to stay, and attracted many movie stars, including W.C. Fields, Clark Gable, Gloria Swanson and Jean Harlow. In addition to a splash in the Roman Plunge pool, there were tennis, golf, croquet, bowling, or polo at a field behind the hotel.

The U.S. Navy purchased the hotel and grounds in 1947; the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School opened in 1951.

The Centennial Celebration will begin Friday, June 6, with a tennis tournament featuring 32 teams each of men's and women's doubles. Play will continue Saturday and Sunday, with a celebrity pro-am match scheduled Saturday and Sunday. The tournament will be played on courts at the Del Monte Hyatt House, La Mesa Village housing and the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School.

A medal play golf tournament is also planned Friday and Saturday at the Naval Postgraduate School and Old Del Monte golf courses. Play will begin with an 8 a.m. shotgun start both days. Friday, men will play the NPS course and women Old Del Monte (behind the Del Monte Hyatt House, Monterey). Saturday, the ladies play NPS and the men take over Old Del Monte. Spectators are welcome.

The Cypress Swim Club will stage a synchronized swim exhibition Saturday, June 7, at 6:15 p.m. at the Roman Plunge pool. The public is welcome at no charge.

Members of the NPS Sailing Association and the Monterey Peninsula Yacht Club will meet in a Shields class regatta on Monterey Bay on Saturday and Sunday. Races begin at noon.

A highlight of the weekend is the Sunday in the Park pops concert by the Monterey County Symphony, to be performed this year on the west lawn of Herrmann Hall (the old hotel building) at 2 p.m. The public is invited to bring a picnic lunch and enjoy the outdoor afternoon; the concert is free.

The Del Monte Hotel and adjoining grounds will be open to the public from 9 a.m.-4 p.m., Friday through Sunday. A historical brochure and a self-guided tour map will be available to visitors. The Monterey History and Art Association will have a display of 1890s costumes in the hotel lobby.

The U.S. Naval Postgraduate School/Del Monte Hotel is at Sloat and Del Monte avenues, Monterey. For further information, phone 646-2411.

YOUNG ACTING STUDENTS in the Children's Experimental Theatre will stage their annual Spring Festival of Plays, Saturday and Sunday, June 7-8 at the Indoor Forest Theater, Carmel. Five original plays will be performed in repertory throughout both days. The public is invited at no charge. See complete schedule elsewhere in this issue.

Children's Experimental Theatre presents free plays this weekend

Mermaids and fishermen, eerie ghosts and the Pied Piper will be found at the final performances of the annual Spring Festival of Plays Saturday and Sunday, June 7-8. The plays are staged by the Children's Experimental Theatre each year as a gift to the community; everyone is welcome to attend at no charge. Homemade sandwiches, popcorn and cupcakes will be available between performances throughout the day.

Under the direction of Marcia Gambrell Hovick, the Children's Experimental Theatre has taught theater arts to local children for more than 16 years.

Two casts of third graders will present The Paradise of Children, based on Hawthorne's charming version of the Pandora myth. Fourth graders will perform The Pied Piper of Hamlin, adapted from the poem by Robert Browning.

Swordplay and intrigue abound in the fifth and sixth grade production of River Treasure, an exciting tale based on a historical event in South Carolina.

The Ghosts of Thorenshield, set in a great house on the eastern coast of England in 1885, promises shivers for everyone, in a production by seventh and eighth graders.

The final play will be The Two Brothers, staged by the CET senior class. A tale of mermaids and Scottish fishermen, the play is concerned with what it means to be human.

All performances will be at the Indoor Forest Theatre, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. Short intermissions are planned between plays.

For further information, phone 624-1531.

The wine connoisseur

Chardonnay is easily California's finest white wine

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

EVERY SPRING AND FALL, it becomes our pleasure to hold a weekly double seminar, Monday and Tuesday nights, for which an animated, articulate and enthusiastic group of California winemakers assembles in our classroom, in the King's Grille aboard the Queen Mary in Long Beach, and at Lawry's California Center in Los Angeles.

They bring two or three of their wines and, after brief expositions of their various histories, winemaking theories and commentary upon the wine market, we pour the wines from masked bottles. The wines are grouped by varietal categories, in logical succession from dry to sweet, whites before reds and rose, still before sparkling, dessert wines and/or late harvest table wines serving to round out the evening.

Our purpose in masking the bottles is no kind of guessing game to test sensory acumen, but merely to develop among both novice and seasoned wine taster increasing familiarity with not only varietal character, but its variations from region to region, even vineyard to vineyard, and winery to winery.

At the end of 10 weeks of such practice, most "students" can readily tell, almost by nose alone, a Chardonnay from a Chenin Blanc, Sauvignon Blanc from Johannisberg Riesling with great ease. It's the same with red wines. Zinfandel, one comes to know, has many personalities, but few of them would be confused with Pinot Noir. Cabernet Sauvignon is never mistaken for Petit Sirah. One comes to know those scents and savors of varietal wines like good friends. The well-defined cameos of taste in the classroom become prizes to seek out in the bins and shelves of wine merchant and supermarket, while the supply is still on hand.

It would be well nigh impossible to chronicle the better-than-200 wines, but we'll highlight some of the memorable selections brought to us from the wine country by their makers. Our listing is a random selection with no particular order, save for varietal category. Any of these wines would enrich your wining and dining experience.

•

CHARDONNAY: Easily California's finest white wine, a rival to some of the best White Burgundies of France. No two are alike. They range from delicacy to masculine boldness, from accents of the grape, to intriguing perfumes of French oak.

Christian Brothers Napa Valley Pinot Chardonnay, $4.75. Ever-dependable, one of the best buys on the market, a buttery-rich wine, well-balanced, of subdued oak to grape.

Spring Mountain Napa Valley Chardonnay, $12.50. Elegant as its price, of a delicately drawn, oak-finished perfection, a wine which will gain in fragrance and softness with added cellar age.

Hacienda Wine Cellars 1978 "Claire de Lune" Sonoma Chardonnay, $9. Winemaker Steve MacRostie's first edition of this wine was dubbed for the Debussy lyrical melody because its softness and charm equalled that loveliness. It does the same again. The nose has the added intrigue of both American and French oak.

Sonoma Vineyards 1978 Sonoma Chardonnay, Chalk Hill Vineyard, $8. Rod Strong produces an aristocratic wine from this fine vineyard, crisp, clean, dry, long on the palate.

Iron Horse 1978 Sonoma County Chardonnay, $7.95. A debut wine for Barry and Audrey Sterling and their winemaker partner Forest Tancer, a blending of grape and three oaks, French, Yugoslavian and American. From hill-grown grapes, non-irrigated, giving a concentrated richness of their essence.

Alexander Valley Vineyards 1978 Alexander Valley Chardonnay, $7.50. From Hank Wetzel's small winery on the site of the Cyrus Alexander homestead of the last century, comes on with the rich scents and tastes of French oak, long on the palate.

Sterling Vineyards 1977 Napa Valley Chardonnay, $9. Luscious and rich in body, with judicious oak adding to the complexity of bouquet.

Chateau Montelena 1978 California Chardonnay, $9. A wonderful blending of grapes from both Napa and the Alexander valleys, judiciously aged in French oak. Outstanding example.

Hoffman Mountain Ranch 1978 Paso Robles Chardonnay, $8. One of the most luscious wines in this listing, of limited quantity, but well worth trying to find. Buttery soft.

Jekel 1978 Monterey County Chardonnay, $7.50. The accent is upon the pure translation of the grape with just enough time in oak to modify, but not dominate, the taste.

Souverain Cellars Vintage Select 1978 North Coast Chardonnay, $8.25. Available only at the winery, until midsummer. Aged in Limousin oak. A big wine which may be laid away to gain added complexity, softness and enhanced bouquet. One of Bill Bonetti's finest wines.

Landmark Vineyards 1978 Sonoma Chardonnay, $9. Young Bill Mabry, his wife and sister combine talents and judgment to raise each wine to an ultimate perfection. This one balances wood and grape to classic perfection.

•

GEWURZTRAMINER: The exotic wine with the funny name is the most easily recognized white wine in the whole roster, save Muscat. It's often said to be "spicy" because that's the meaning of the German prefix gewurz, but it's really much more like fresh litchi nuts, or even grapefruit, in savor and taste. In California, it's generally made with a minimal edge of residual sweetness, not too much, just enough.

Joseph Phelps 1978 Napa Valley Gewurztraminer, $5.50. Buy a bottle or case of this wine, to serve as a memory index of just exactly how this wine should taste. It's magnificent.

Buena Vista 1978 Sonoma Gewurztraminer, $5.75. Winemaker Rene Lacasia has produced here the quintessential Gewurztraminer, harvesting the grapes at the exact moment when bouquet, savor and flavor were at their peak. Another classic.

Pedroncelli 1978 Sonoma County Gewurztraminer, $3.75. An extraordinary value, beautiful wine, of true varietal character, only slightly sweet-edged, certain to please everyone.

•

SPACE PRECLUDES OUR LISTING many more white wines, but here are three more, each an exciting adventure in wine tasting:

Concannon 1979 Livermore Valley Rkatsiteli, $5. James Concannon has learned exactly how to prune, cultivate, harvest and vinify this native Russian varietal, planted exclusively in his Livermore vineyard. It's unique. dry, the nose suggesting new-mown clover. Wonderful aperitif wine.

San Martin 1979 Soft Santa Barbara County Johannisberg Riesling, $5.50. Winemaker Ed Friedrich pioneered the low-alcohol, high fresh fruit-quality wines, with slow, long, cool fermentation. It's like crushing a ripe, cold, fresh grape right into your mouth.

Montevina 1979 Amador County Sauvignon Blanc, $7.25. A luscious unique wine, maybe from that mountain land, but somehow Cary Gott has created a very special confection of a wine that might just become a family favorite. Try it.

Oriental textiles lecture offered

Mary V. Hays, a well-known authority on Japanese and Chinese textiles, will offer a three-part lecture series relating to Fukusa and Japanese textiles. The series is in conjunction with a new exhibit of Japanese Fukusa, or gift cloths, which opens June 6 at the museum.

Miss Hays will present The History of the Fukusa in Japan on Monday, June 9. On June 16, her topic will be The Customs and Festivals of Japan in the Edo Period. The concluding lecture, Needlework and Construction of the Fukusa, is scheduled Monday, June 23.

All lectures begin at 2 p.m. in the Main Gallery, where the exhibit is hung. Cost for the series is $5 or $2 per lecture for museum members and members of sponsoring organizations, or $6.50 and $2.50, respectively, for non-members.

Miss Hays will also identify Chinese and Japanese textiles from anyone's personal collection on Monday, June 16, from 11 a.m.-noon. There is no charge to bring textiles for her identification.

For further information, phone the museum, 372-7291.

Mayan weaving demonstration set

A weaving demonstration and lecture on the Mayan Indians of Gautemala will be given at Monterey Peninsula College Friday, June 6 at 8 p.m. in the MPC Choral Room on the Monterey campus.

The ancient backstrap weaving technique will be demonstrated by 19-year-old Marines Perez from San Antonio Aguas Calientes in the central highlands of Guatemala and 10-year-old Elena Ramirez Raymundo from the mountain village of Nebaj. The two will be assisted by interpreter-lecturer Lydia Parks.

Miss Parks has collected information about the derivation and evolution of symbols used in the Mayan textile art for many years. After the earthquake of 1976, she promoted weaving tours to aid the Mayans in their struggle to survive and claim their place in the art world.

Slides depicting the Mayan way of dress, customs, and lifestyle will accompany the lecture. Miss Parks will show how each village has its own distinctive traje woven on backstrap looms by local people. Colors, designs, and patterns identify beliefs, social standing, marital and economic status.

The two Guatemalans will wear representative traje from their villages and will speak two different dialects. Five different customs and a variety of weavings will also be demonstrated.

Admission is $1. For further information, phone 649-1150.

Women voters to meet

A general meeting of the League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula is scheduled Thursday, June 12 at the Pacific Grove Community center, Junipero and 14th, Pacific Grove.

Luncheon will be served at noon; the meeting convenes from 1-2 p.m. Price for luncheon is $3; the program is free.

Elaine Base is community coordinator with the Stanford Heart Disease Prevention Program now underway in the Salinas, Monterey and Pacific Grove areas. The program is the first of its kind in the country.

A Monterey County resident since 1968, Miss Base is trained in health education and has a degree from UC, Berkeley. She served as Director of Health Education with the Monterey County Health Department for 11 years. Her primary goals are to help individuals learn self-responsibility for their own well-being and to work toward developing social structures favorable to a healthful environment.

For luncheon reservations or child care, phone Mary Hawkins, 372-0992.

Premiere of Bogart film to benefit Carmel schools

The world premiere of The Man with Bogart's Face will be presented by FOCUS, Friends of Carmel Unified Schools, at a theater party Friday, June 13, at 8 p.m. in Sunset Theater. The 20th Century Fox film is scheduled to be released this fall.

The mystery-comedy stars Robert Sacchi as a private eye who undergoes cosmetic surgery to look like his favorite screen hero.

A wine, cheese and cider party with live entertainment is planned after the movie.

Tickets are $15 per person. They may be ordered in advance by mailing a check payable to FOCUS to P.O. Box 221088, Carmel, Ca. 93922 or phone 624-1714 for reservations.

Tickets will also be available at the door.

Local artist exhibits at Carmel Foundation

Paintings by Camilla Buehr are currently on view through the month of June at Carmel Foundation, Lincoln and Eighth, Carmel.

Miss Buehr is best known locally for her watercolor portraits, but landscapes, street scenes and exotic paintings of birds, animals and figures on heavy linen will also be included in the exhibit.

Camilla came to Carmel from Darien, Conn. in 1970. She had exhibited her paintings widely in the New York area and taught painting at the Art Students League in New York City.

The exhibit may be viewed from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. weekdays and 2-5 p.m. on weekends.

For additional information, phone 624-1588.

Cheese cookery to be featured at the Peppercorn this weekend

Cheese tarts and blintzes will be the subject of free cooking demonstrations this weekend at the Peppercorn in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel.

Not quiches, but rich, tender cheese tarts filled with roquefort, parmesan and brie, will be made Saturday, June 7. The free demonstrations continue from 10 a.m.-noon and 1-3 p.m.

Blintzes filled with fruit and cheese, then deep fried in butter will be prepared Sunday, June 8. Hours are the same as the Saturday demonstrations.

For further information, phone 625-0100.

Enthusiastic audiences enjoyed chamber music & jazz

By SCOTT MacCLELLAND

TWO WEEKEND EVENTS drew large and enthusiastic audiences: a chamber recital featuring harpist Barbara Chapman at the Kelley Gallery in Monterey Sunday afternoon and the finalists' concert of the Monterey Jazz Festival's California High School Jazz Competition in Pacific Grove Saturday night.

Joining Barbara Chapman was flutist Colleen Carroll, who proved to be a first-rate player throughout a demanding program. Biggest work on the program was Mozart's Flute and Harp Concerto, K. 299, in which the dialogue between the two instruments was given its orchestral context by pianist Judith Frankel.

Unfortunately, the upright piano was a sorry box of neglected action and doubtful tuning, and its idiosyncrasies gave Miss Frankel cause for distraction, especially in the first movement. Fortunately, Mozart's writing kept the instrument in a largely unobtrusive position and the concerto progressed nicely.

Miss Chapman did not always achieve the concise articulation that normally marks her playing, but the reading remained most musical, if a big restrained. Miss Carroll projected a clear and full-bodied tone touched with sweetness and subtlety. The three cadenzas were the romantic works of Carl Reinecke.

The playing in the first two pieces following intermission was lovely. Donizetti's Sonata for Flute and Harp (originally for flute and piano) was composed in 1819. Its two movements were, first, like a sweet and sentimental lament, second, a buffa cabaletta so characteristic of the composer's comic opera style. The Aria from Villa Lobos' Bachianas Brasileiras No. 5 was adapted from the well-known original for soprano and cellos.

Violist Jill Cohen then joined the Misses Carroll and Chapman for Debussy's wistful and charming Sonate which dates from 1915, three years before his death.

Miss Cohen's playing was a bit coarse early on, but settled into the ultimate realization of sensitive ensemble. The piece was portrayed with flair and shimmering color.

An arrangement for flute and harp of O Danny Boy was the tender and expressive encore to an afternoon of delight, and KUSP radio broadcast the program live to an audience larger still than the Kelley's standing-room-only gallery.

BERKELEY HIGH SCHOOL'S jazz department is the strongest in the state, if its impact on the annual Monterey Jazz Festival-sponsored competition is any indicator.

Not only did Phil Hardyman's students take top honors in big band last Saturday night, but they were the only ones who entered both big band and combo competition.

For that matter, many of them were named to the California All Star Jazz Band that will be heard at this September's Jazz Festival at the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

There were three big bands that reached the final round and it was this last concert that determined the winner. The choice of the judges was anything but easy. Distinguished and forceful creations were offered in sets by the bands of Huntington Beach (under Galen Vogel), Pleasant Hill (under Paul Yonemura) and Berkeley.

Only one combo made the finals, and its playing was like velvet chamber music. Jay Lehmann's Monte Vista High quartet from Danville included flute, piano, bass and drums, and its set featured suave realizations from Claude Bolling's Suite for Flute and Jazz Piano. French jazz is, to me, a hybrid of jazz ingredients and composed music (with some exceptions), and Bolling's work is a typical, though finely wrought, example. The Danville players made it their own.

The Pleasant Hill band, offering the evening's final set, was just a slip away from the unstoppable Berkeley players.

Yonemura stepped into the job just five months ago and achieved miracles. But the success of this ensemble at the competition will have a hollow ring back home. The Pleasant Hill High music program — indeed the entire school — is being dissolved at the end of the current year. The chemistry of its jazz clearly captured Alexander Scriabin's sentiment, "The universe resounds with the joyful cry, I Am!"

Scott MacClelland is classical music director for KWAV-FM 96.9.

Staff Players slate auditions June 11-12

Auditions for the summer theater productions of the Staff Players Repertory Company are scheduled Wednesday and Thursday, June 11-12 at the Indoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. Readings begin at 7:30 p.m.

Three plays will be produced by the company: Jean Giraudoux's The Enchanted directed by Nick Hovick; Simon Gray's Butly directed by Cary Crocket and Carol Hovick, and a melodrama. The Enchanted opens the first week in July with the melodrama beginning in mid-July and staged on alternating weekends. Butly opens the first week in August.

All plays will be rehearsed and staged at the York School Theater Center.

Hot Jazz Society to meet, play Sunday

Triple threat musician Betty O'Hara will be guest of honor at the monthly meeting of the Monterey Bay Hot Jazz Society on Sunday, June 8. The local jazz-lovers meet at 2 p.m. at the American Legion Hall, Jefferson and High streets, Monterey.

Billed as a trombonist, Betty earns the triple threat description because she also plays trumpet and sings.

She started with the trumpet while in high school in Indiana. After graduation, she toured with Freddie Shaffer's Girl Band and began to play the trombone.

Betty eventually moved to Connecticut where she played and sang with a band and also played second trumpet with the Hartford Symphony. She moved to California in 1960. Through her former husband, Dick Cary, she has played with Eddie Miller, Matty Matlock, Peanuts Hucko, Nick Fatool, Abe Most, Ray Leatherwood and John Best.

In 1977 she and husband Barrett O'Hara went to Japan with the Billy Vaughn Orchestra where Betty played trombone and cornet. In 1979 she toured Brazil with the Billy Vaughn band.

The Monterey Bay Hot Jazz Society is a non-profit organization dedicated to the encouragement of Dixieland jazz.

Admission is $3 general, $1 for members and 50 cents for pre-high school youngsters.

For further information, phone 375-3017.

Backgammon

by Alfred Sheinwold

SHORT MOVE FIRST

You, White, roll 6-2 in the diagrammed position. How do you play it?

A fast player takes the six by bearing a man off the 4-point; and he then looks for a safe four. He must leave a blot on his 1-point or his 2-point.

The cautious player doesn't leave a blot. He moves the two before he takes the six. That is, he moves first from the 4-point to the 2-point. Then he takes the six by bearing a man off the 3-point.

White may eventually have to leave a blot, but it is foolish to leave a blot unnecessarily.

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send 50 cents plus a stamped, self-addressed, No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.

Master English pewterer to visit Carmel shop

Master English pewterer John Somers will attend a reception in his honor Wednesday, June 11 from 5-7 p.m. at the Pewter Shop in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel.

A resident of the colonial Brazilian town of Sao Joao del Rei, Somers has received commissions from the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and the Victoria and Albert Museum in London to cast reproductions from their collections of antique pewter.

Somers will visit Carmel directly from London where he participated in a series of events that launched the first Victoria and Albert reproduction exhibits.

Five of the Victoria and Albert pieces will be displayed at the reception and put on sale the following day.

The works include:

• English candlestick, circa 1650-1675. The shape of the candlestick is also found in silver and brass of that period and is an excellent example of the plagiarism between the crafts.

• English lidded tanker with wriggled works engraving of William and Mary. Most surviving examples of wriggled work from that period are allusive to William and Mary. The style died out rapidly in the first years of the 18th century because rapid improvement in the sophistication of silver engraving made the pewterer's wriggled work appear awkward.

• Dutch beaker engraved with the portraits of William and Mary, circa 1688-1704. It is unusual that a beaker originally cast in Holland would carry the portraits of the king and queen of England. However, William was Dutch, married to Mary, daughter of Charles II of England.

• Dutch taperstick, circa 1690. Marked Ch. Tapers, they were tall thin candles, kept alight to provide ready fire more than light. Typically they were used to melt sealing wax.

• French candlestick, circa 1750, with unidentified marks. The museum has a matching pair.

For further information, phone 624-4332.

JOHN SOMERS, master pewter craftsman, will attend a reception to mark the opening of a display of pewter reproductions from London's Victoria and Albert Museum. Everyone is welcome to meet the artist Wednesday, June 11, from 5-7 p.m., at the Pewter Shop in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel.

Dungeons and Dragons classes to be offered

Dungeons and Dragons, the new game rage now sweeping the country, will be taught in a series of free beginning-level classes Sunday morning at 10 a.m. at the Game Gallery, Dolores Street between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel. The classes will teach the basic rules of the game.

Unlike other games, there is no board, play money, no winners or losers. The fantasy role-playing game was inspired by J.R.R.Tolkien's Lord of the Rings trilogy. Players send characters (including dwarfs, elves and wizards) out on adventures into a dungeon set up by the Dungeon Master (DM). The DM determines the outcome of the players' encounters with monsters and other obstacles. According to the Game Gallery, there are already more than 200,000 players in the U.S. and Canada.

Classes will be taught by Dungeons and Dragons expert Kevin Askeland. Because of limited seating, reservations are required. Phone 625-1771 for reservations or information.

Friends of the Sea Otter plan "otter watch"

Lovers of the California sea otter have another opportunity to participate in early morning "otter watching" with local naturalist Jud Vandevere on Saturday, June 7. The activity is sponsored by the Friends of the Sea Otter.

Bring binoculars and warm clothing to the parking lot of the Coast Guard Breakwater at the beginning of Cannery Row, Monterey. "Watchers" will meet at 8 a.m. to carpool to selected viewing sites along Monterey Bay.

For further information, phone Carol Fulton, 625-5304.

REMEMBER WHEN?

50 years ago

From the "Carmel Pine Cone," June 6, 1930.

TWO MUCH-SOUGHT CITIES
(Editorial in Los Angeles Times)

Among the fast-growing California cities during the last decade, Beverly Hills in the south, and Carmel-by-the-Sea in the north, have made phenomenal showings.

The figures should be interesting to all city planners and official bodies to whom is entrusted the important job of designing improvements for the public domain.

Beverly Hills and Carmel have stood resolutely for the same ideal — to stamp a distinctive personality on their respective cities. They have refused to sacrifice beauty to expediency, to accept the modern doctrine of uniformity in design, to disfigure their streets with concessions of doubtful taste or to sell their natural birthrights for a mess of contractors' pottage.

When Beverly Hills plans new thoroughfares, it includes parkways and shade trees as a first requisite. So it does not approve of cutting down trees that have taken forty years to mature to accommodate cement pavements which will be torn up again in five or six months.

Carmel went through a long fight between the artistic and the commercial elements, and the artistic side won the day. It is still a city in a forest, as it was ten years ago.

Solomon asked for wisdom and had riches added to the gift; Beverly Hills and Carmel sought beauty first and gained population also. In other cities how many big-little men misunderstand the "vox populi!"

COUNCIL UPS SALES TAX

The Carmel City Council held first reading of an ordinance raising the city sales tax from one half of one percent to one percent at its meeting last night.

The new ordinance is the same in every respect as the existing one, except for the change in amount of the tax.

COUNCIL SAYS YES TO TV COMPANY

Carmel Martin Jr., appearing for the Alarm Corp., the coaxial cable television people, backed by a king-sized chart and testimony of engineering and financial experts, bemused the council into giving the company permission to install one of its amplifying boxes on the city sidewalk under the supervision of the Planning Commission-street department esthetics committee, the idea being, if this box looks pretty and too many people don't fall over it, the council will repeal the regulation requiring the company to place its boxes underground.

There are 22 boxes at present that would be exhumed and placed on the public sidewalks or hung from trees and telephones throughout the residence district, with no estimate of how many would be installed in the future.

SCIENTISTS WARN OF BAY POLLUTION

With an eye toward the potential pollution problem in the Carmel Bay area, the Carmel Sanitary District Board met Tuesday night and approved a $2.4 million bond issue to be presented for special election on Aug. 4. The board hopes to institute the proposed changes in the Sanitary District as soon as possible.

"As soon as possible" means an operational system by the end of 1971.

County Symphony to give free concert Sunday

Sunday in the Park, the annual outdoor pops concert presented by the Monterey County Symphony, has a new location this year. The symphony will perform beneath a gay canopy on the west lawn of Herrmann Hall at the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School on Sunday, June 8, at 2 p.m. The Navy School requested the performance as part of its three-day Centennial Celebration this weekend (see related story in this issue). Former pops concerts have been given at the Monterey Fairgrounds.

A bonus is that the concert will be free this year as a gift to the community from the U.S. Navy.

Concertgoers are invited to bring a picnic lunch and a blanket or cloth and enjoy the al fresco afternoon.

The program will include: El Capitan March by Sousa; Overture from the Mikado by Sir Arthur Sullivan; Finlandia by Sibelius; Giuditta Song by Franz Lehar; Voices of Spring Waltz by Johann Strauss; Intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana by Mascagni; The Sound of Music by Richard Rodgers; the William Tell Overture by Rossini; and the Stars and Stripes Forever March by Sousa.

Soprano Catarina Micieli will appear with the orchestra, which will be under the baton of music director Haymo Taeuber.

Herrmann Hall is the former Del Monte Hotel building at NPS. The school is at Sloat and Del Monte avenues, Monterey.

For further information, phone the symphony office, 625-8511.

Native Plant Society plans outing

The Monterey Bay Chapter of the California Native Plant Society invites all interested plant lovers to join their outing Sunday, June 8 at Soberanes Point. Participants will meet at 9:30 a.m. behind Brinton's in Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, to carpool.

Judson Vandevere will lead a short walk of less than one mile to see plants on the marine terrace and shoreline of the new state park acquisition.

For further information, phone 372-6001.

UC Extension slates Picasso study tour

A study tour to New York to view the largest collection of Pablo Picasso's art ever assembled will be sponsored from August 20-28 by University of California Extension, Santa Cruz.

The tour will focus on the New York Museum of Modern Art exhibit of almost 1,000 paintings, sculptures, collages, drawings, prints and ceramics representing nearly eight decades of Picasso's work.

The exhibit marks the first time the Museum has devoted its entire facility to a single artist, and includes selections from the master's own private hoard, his heirs, and private collectors which have never been seen by the public.

In addition, participants will visit other museums under the guidance of Beverly Cassell of the UC Santa Cruz art faculty.

Optional theater performances are included in the tour. For information about Picasso: An Intimate Look at the Master, write University of California Extension, Santa Cruz, California 95064, or phone (408) 429-2971.

JAPANESE FUKUSA, or embroidered and appliqued gift coverings from the 17th and 18th centuries, will be on display in the Main Gallery of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art from June 7 through July 6. The Nomura Collection of 34 pieces is on loan from Mills College. The local museum is the first in America to show the collection. The museum is at 559 Pacific St., Monterey.

Japanese textile exhibit at Monterey Museum of Art

The Japanese Fukusa, from the Nomura Collection at Mills College will be exhibited in the Main Gallery of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, 559 Pacific St., Monterey, from Saturday, June 7 through July 6. The 34 fukusa in the exhibition offer fine examples of artistic expression in the areas of embroidery, applique and various dyeing techniques.

Also on view will be Etchings by Yasuhiro Esaki in the Leonard Heller Memorial Gallery and The Mola in the Folk Art Gallery.

The Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art is the first museum in America to have the privilege of showing these beautiful 17th and 18th century Japanese gift covers or Fukusa. The collection was given to Mills College in 1953 by Mr. S. Morris Nomura, son of the late connoisseur and collector, Shojiro Nomura of Kyoto.

In the early 20th century, Shojiro Nomura had the foresight to collect the textiles of the Edo Period (1615-1867), realizing that these magnificent household items would soon disappear because they no longer played a dominant role in the contemporary social structure of Japan.

The word Fukusa means "soft" or "light as down." The earliest reference to a cloth called a fukusa is in the Heian Period (794-1185) when it was used by classes of the aristocracy to protect their belongings from dust as they traveled by ox-cart. Gift coverings of some sort probably were used in succeeding periods of Japanese history. By the Edo Period a particular type of gift cover was specifically designated a Fukusa.

These elaborately patterned Fukusa were used by the upper classes as covers, not wrappings, for gifts to be ceremoniously presented on special occasions. The richness of the decoration of the gift was an indication of the giver's wealth, its design reflected his aesthetics, and his sensitivity was judged by the suitability of the Fukusa selected for the occasion, season or festival.

Usually five items were necessary for the presentation of the gift. First, a fabric covering was placed on a lacquer or Kiri wood tray. A lacquer box containing the gift was placed on top of this. Placed on top of the box was the Noshi, strands of dried abalone a..d seaweed twisted and tied with a cord, and over everything laid the Fukusa.

When the gift was presented, both Fukusa and box were admired, after which everything was taken away, the gift removed and something put in its place. Then the tray, box and Fukusa were returned to the giver.

Yasuhiro Esaki, whose etchings are on view in the Leonard Heller Memorial Gallery, received his B.A. from Yokohama University in 1964. Since then, he has furthered his education at Ochanomizu Art Institute in Tokyo, and the Academy of Art and Lone Mountain College, both in San Francisco.

His finely detailed etchings have been shown at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, a Western Association of Art Museums traveling show and the Achenbach Foundation, California Palace of the Legion of Honor, where his work is in the permanent collection.

Esaki won the $1,000 first prize Purchase Award at the 1978 Miami Graphics Biennial sponsored by the Metropolitan Museum and Art Centers.

Also on view will be a collection of molas handmade by the Cuna Indian women of the San Blas Islands. The mola technique is one of reverse applique which involves layers of cloth cut and stitched dramatically to produce a variety of designs.

The molas on display are from the collection of Ann Peck, who lives in Golfito, Costa Rica and who has been collecting molas for the past four years.

A preview for the three exhibits is planned Friday, June 6. Tea will be served from 2-5 p.m., refreshments from 6-8 p.m.

Regular museum hours are 10 a.m.-4 p.m., Tuesday through Friday; and 1-4 p.m., weekends. Admission is free.

Earthquake and Gold Rush topics of free movies at library

Earthquakes and U.S. history are the subjects of two short films to be shown Thursday, June 5 at 2 p.m. at the Monterey Public Library, 625 Pacific St., Monterey. Everyone is welcome to the free weekly screening.

Tomorrow's Quake is an 18-minute, fast-moving film that investigates almost every aspect of earthquakes. The San Andreas fault, earthquake mechanics, seismographs, tiltmeters, ground elevation, strange animal behavior and documentary footage of a predicted earthquake are all explored.

In 1803 after the Louisiana Purchase was made, Lewis and Clarke were sent on a reconnaissance mission to the Pacific Ocean, while rivermen explored the distant reaches of the Missouri and other rivers. Expansionist white men forced entire Indian nations — Chickasaw, Choctaw, Creek, Cherokee — west of the Mississippi and the war was on. Then came the Gold Rush and the '49ers! All this and more is included in the 52-minute film, Gone West.

For additional information, phone 646-3930.

Virginia McLain, educational foundation program chairman of the Monterey Chapter of the American Association of University Women, presents an AAUW Music Scholarship check to Hidden Valley Student Development director Fritz Renner.

AAUW will sponsor two partial music scholarships to area high school age musicians for summer music study at the Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley. The $150 scholarship aids will be awarded to a vocalist and instrumentalist who reside in Monterey County and meet audition requirements.

Scholarship applications for the Choral Seminar, June 22-July 12, and the Orchestra Seminar, July 28-Aug. 16, are available by phoning Hidden Valley at 659-3115.

Further information may also be obtained by writing Fritz Renner, Hidden Valley Music Seminars, P.O. Box 116, Carmel Valley, CA 93924.

CARMELITE TO SAIL IN CENTENNIAL REGATTA

Adams Cup contender Patti Womble of Carmel and two-time national champion Dick Clark head an elite field of 10 skippers who will compete this weekend as part of the centennial celebration of Hotel Del Monte in Monterey (now the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School).

Film Society to screen award-winning films

Peppermint Soda, an effervescent concoction about a French-Jewish schoolgirl and Padre, Padrone, selected Best Film at the 1977 Cannes Film Festival, are the current offerings of the Monterey Peninsula Film Society. Peppermint Soda will screen Friday and Saturday, June 6-7, Padre, Padrone is scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday, June 10-11. All films begin at 8:15 p.m. in the S.F.B. Morse Auditorium, 425 Van Buren St., Monterey.

Film critic Judith Crist called Peppermint Soda "a rare and wonderful accomplishment . . . as refreshing as its title." Directed by Diane Kunys (then unknown), the film won the Prix Louis Dellue as Best Picture (1978) and was the highest grossing film in France that year.

Starring Eleanora Klarwein, the story describes the friends, family, school, vacation, sulks, sexual misconceptions, pop records, bad grades, adventures and misadventures of a French-Jewish schoolgirl in the epochal year of 1963. The color film is in French with English subtitles.

Padre, Padrone has the distinction of being the first film to win both top honors at Cannes: the Golden Palm for Best Film and the International Critics' Award.

Written and directed by brothers Paolo and Vittorio Taviani, the inspiration for the film came from a newspaper clipping about a shepherd who had lived in almost total isolation in the hills of Sardinia until he was 20 years of age. The shepherd went on to become a professor of linguistics.

As the Tavianis delved more deeply into the story, they realized that the shepherd's character was not formed simply because of his loneliness and estrangement, but by his terrifying and tyrannical father. The title translates as "My father, my master."

The color film is in Italian with English subtitles.

Admission is $3, general; $2.50 for students and seniors; and $2 for film society members.

The film society is a non-profit organization dedicated to bringing landmark films to the Monterey Peninsula. For additional information, phone 659-4795.

Steinbeck play at Hartnell

John Steinbeck's classic, Of Mice and Men, will open the Hartnell College Theatre summer season on Thursday, June 5, at 8 p.m., in the Hartnell Performing Arts Center, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas.

Written shortly after publication of the novel, Of Mice and Men opened on Broadway in 1937 and won the Drama Critics Circle Award for Best Play of the Year. It has enjoyed innumerable successful revivals and has also been produced for television.

The play is a moving study of two roving farm hands, one of whom, "with the strength of a gorilla and the mind of an untutored child" unwittingly murders a woman and is killed in turn by his friend to prevent his arrest. Lenny, the gentle giant is played by Joe Yedlicka. Alan Cook is his friend, George.

Of Mice and Men will be staged through June 21. Performances are scheduled June 5-8, 11-15, and 18-21. The Sunday, June 15 performance will be a matinee with curtain at 2:30 p.m. All evening shows begin at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $4.50 for Tuesday through Thursday productions; $5.50, Friday and Saturday night; and $3.50 for Sunday shows.

Father Farrell's Wisdom

Take time to care

The May 28 invocation to the Carmel Rotary Club.

Oh, almighty and eternal God, be pleased to bless this food to our use and to bless us all to Thy service as true Rotarians serving others above self.

There is a haunting folk song, Where Have All the Flowers Gone? Looking at the world, we can paraphrase the song by asking, "Where have all the heroes gone?" Who stands out above politicians, profiteers and sordid self-seekers?

We point to Mother Theresa of India who nurses with her nuns the poorest of the poor, Hindus, Sikhs, Parsees, and Moslems, lepers and the dying, abandoned in the streets of Calcutta.

Mother Theresa says, "I have come to realize that being unwanted is the worst disease any human being can experience. The greatest service any human being can experience, the greatest service one human being can give another is to make someone feel wanted."

Calcutta has no monopoly on the sad, the lonely, and the neglected. Here in Carmel there are neighbors who die of malnutrition. They have plenty of food, but they are too lonesome to eat. Search them out and make them feel important. Visit them, phone them, invite them into your home. When they see you care, they will respond.

Sometimes under your own roof there can be members of your family neglected and ignored. Don't be ashamed of saying and meaning, "I love you." Try praising your wife instead of giving her a verbal karate chop. She will survive the shock.

Acts of caring, if performed consistently, can be heroic. It's like skating, riding a bike, or eating with chopsticks — they look easy until you try them. So when you hear, "Where have all the heroes gone?" we can reply, "They are all in the Carmel Rotary."

Do I hear the Lord saying, "Who said the days of miracles have gone?"

Our Churches

UNITARIAN

Membering, Remembering will be the sermon topic of the Rev. Margaret Keip Sunday, June 8, at the Monterey Peninsula Unitarian Church, upper Aquajito Road and Carmel Hill interchange of Highways One and 68.

OBITUARIES

Regina Nopert, 76

Regina M. Nopert, 76, died Friday, May 30, at the home of her daughter in Carmel.

She was born in Belgium. She was a chef about 25 years at L'Escargot restaurant in Carmel and resided on the Peninsula for 30 years.

She leaves her daughter, Georgette Toldi of Carmel; a son, Yvan Nopert of Carmel, and a brother, Oscar Cornet of Carmel.

A memorial service will be held at a later date. Burial was in El Carmelo Cemetery.

Paul Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

The family has requested that memorial contributions be to Community Hospital.

John Chaddock,

John F. Chaddock, 81, an 18-year resident of Carmel and a retired food broker, died Tuesday, May 27, in Community Hospital.

He was born in Fresno. He was a food broker for 42 years for a San Francisco brokerage firm. He was a 1921 graduate of the University of Calfironia at Berkeley and a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

He leaves his wife, Eleanor; two sons, John Chaddock Jr. of Walnut Creek and Guy Le Valley Chaddock of Los Angeles; a daughter, Jean Chaddock Edwards of Menlo Park; seven grandchildren, and 11 great-grandchildren.

There will be no funeral services. Cremation was at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove, with ashes to be scattered at sea.

The family suggests memorials be sent to Guide Dogs for the Blind of San Rafael or to the donor's favorite charity.

Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Carlin Arriola, 34

Carlin A. Arriola, 34, formerly of Carmel, died Friday, May 30, at his home in French Lick, Ind.

He was born in Los Angeles. He attended Sunset and Carmel High schools.

He appeared in plays and summer musicals at the Studio Theater.

He attended UC Santa Barbara and UC Berkeley before moving to French Lick, in 1968, where he ran a home repair business and was active in theater.

He leaves his parents, Frances and Gus Arriola of Carmel, and his daughter, Ramona, 5, of Lyme, Conn.

Burial was in French Lick. A memorial service will be held there, Saturday, June 7.

The family requests that memorial contributions be to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula.

Danna Wentworth

Danna Wentworth, 78, a former resident of Carmel, died Wednesday, May 21, in St. Louis, after a long illness.

She was born in St. Louis and came to Carmel in 1940, residing at Eighth Avenue and Monte Verde Street.

She worked at the Monterey office of the state Department of Employment Development for 25 years, retiring in 1966.

She left the Peninsula in 1972 to live with her daughters in London and St. Louis.

She leaves her daughters, Marilyn Phillips of St. Louis, Jane Slaff of London, Joan Lynch of Champaign, Ill., and Lillian Wentworth Page of Claremont.

A private memorial service was held at the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel. Burial was in Monterey City Cemetery.

Constance Benton

Constance E. Benton, of Carmel Valley Manor, died Friday, May 23, at the manor.

She was a native of Portland, Ore., and a member of Carmel Presbyterian Church and the PEO Sisterhood, Chapter NJ.

She leaves several nieces in Oregon.

Memorial services were held in Carmel Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Wayne Walker officiating.

Burial will be at Riverview Cemetery in Portland.

Farlinger Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorials be sent to the donor's favorite charity.

Martin F. Koenig

Martin F. Koenig, a former resident of Carmel Valley, died Thursday, May 29, in Driftwood Convalescent Hospital.

He was born in Milwaukee and moved to Carmel Valley in 1973. He moved to Watsonville in 1975, and made his home there until his death.

He was an electrical engineer and held many electrical patents. He started his career as an apprentice tool and die maker with Cutler-Hammer Co., and at the time of his retirement in 1973, he was a supervising development engineer. He was a registered professional engineer and a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

He was also a member of Carmel Masonic Lodge, the High 12, the Sirs Group and the United Presbyterian Church of Watsonville. During World War II, he served as a member of the U.S. Naval Reserve.

He leaves his wife, Louise Koenig; a son, Dr. Charles F. Koenig of Salinas; a sister, Anita Kocan of Wisconsin, and four grandchildren.

A memorial service was held in United Presbyterian Church, Watsonville, with the Rev. Alan Searles officiating. Private cremation will be at the IOOF Cemetery, Watsonville, under the direction of Davis Memorial Chapel, Watsonville.

The family prefers contributions to the United Presbyterian Church Memorial Fund, 112 East Beach St., Watsonville.

Public Notices

NOTICE OF EIR REVIEW PERIOD

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the County of Monterey, State of California is seeking written comment on the Draft Environmental Impact Report on the High Meadow II Subdivision in accordance with the California Environmental Quality Act of 1970. This review period is established for the purpose of receiving written comments on the accuracy and adequacy of the Environmental Impact Report together with other information relative to the environmental effect of the project. The overall project will consist of 111 residential units on 71.8 acres on two ridges of the property. The initial development would consist of 30 subdivided lots for single family homes, and a 17-unit townhouse cluster. Development of the remaining 64 units as townhouses on the second ridge would occur at some later date. The project site is located near the mouth of Carmel Valley in Monterey County.

NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that said comments will be received until the following date: June 30, 1980 at 5:00 p.m.

Comments received will be included verbatim in the Final EIR which will respond to significant issues raised in the written comments received. Copies of this report are available at the Monterey County Planning Department in Salinas or may be reviewed at the following locations: Carmel Valley Branch Library and Harrison Memorial Library.

A Public Hearing before the Board of Supervisors, to certify the EIR as complete and adequate will be held subsequent to this review at a time and place to be specified by legal ad in a local newspaper of general circulation.

FREE WANT ADS

For subscribers to the Carmel Pine Cone

A SPECIAL OFFER TO OUR VALUED SUBSCRIBERS

The Pine Cone is happy to be here and we always look forward to meeting our subscribers. As a gesture of our thanks for your continued support, we invite you to have a FREE WANT AD every week, in your paper.

HOW TO WRITE A WANT AD

List the classification you want your ad to appear under in the form at right. Then start your ad with the item you have for sale, etc. Be sure to include your phone number at the end. To make your ad effective, describe your item fully including such things as weight, size, color, age, condition, etc. It is best to list your asking price; this will eliminate calls from people who are not prospective buyers.

RULES:

Free want ads are for person-to-person sales only. Ads for businesses or real estate will not be accepted. Free ads must be written on this form only and delivered to our office by 3 p.m. Monday (no phone ads, please). Free ads are limited to 16 words. The Pine Cone is not responsible for errors in free ads. Limit is one ad per subscriber per week. To run the same ad the following week, a new ad on a new form must be submitted. Publisher reserves the right to refuse any free ad for any reason. Free ads must be placed in the following classifications: Antiques, Autos for Sale, Boats for Sale, Lost & Found, Misc. for Sale, Pets & Livestock, Special Notices, Wanted, Yard Sales.

This label is your ticket for a free ad and must appear here on any ad you turn in. Clip this label from the front page of your weekly Pine Cone.

ATTACH THE ADDRESS LABEL ON YOUR PERSONAL COPY OF THE PINE CONE HERE

CLASSIFICATION _____ Please print your ad below, one word per space

GRACIOUS FAMILY HOME
4 Bedrooms—2½ Baths
Carmel

A TREASURY OF AMPLE SPACES AND TRTADITIONAL CHARMS, this lovingly maintained two-story house with convenient circular drive represents all we think of when we say "home." Gracious living, creature comforts, flexible floor plan and privacy!

On the upper level; a beamed ceiling living room with marble framed fireplace and sliding glass doors to a sunny enclosed patio full of colorful potted plants and shrubs (most of which will stay); two bedrooms, 1½ baths; formal dining room; country kitchen and marvelous old fashioned pantry. Two more bedrooms, bath and immense sitting room with fireplace and separate entrance complete the ground level.

Closet space galore, huge laundry/sewing room, skylights, two furnaces and easy walking proximity to town and beach, are some of the goodies that come with this eminently livable house, which is also one that lends itself to elegance of decor. Casanova and Fourth. Gerry Hopkins or Lucretia Butler. $272,500.

OUR MARKET ANALYSIS. YOUR HOME'S VALUE BASED ON WISDOM, NOT WHIM.

Knowledge and experience. The two most important factors in pricing your home to sell, at a price that makes it worthwhile.

At CENTURY 21, we compare the location, size, condition, and improvements of your property to the price of homes recently sold, those currently for sale, and those homes that did not sell, perhaps because of inflated price-tags. What emerges is a competitive price range and a selling price that may pleasantly surprise you.

Ask us for a Market Value Ce tificate." Something far better than an emotional opinion – a professional evaluation based on facts. Call your Neighborhood Professional today for complete information.

BEAT THE PRICE

You can buy a Carmel home for less money. You can also repair it when you've bought it, paint it, replace the appliances, reroof and bring it up to the quality of this home. Assuming that the house you buy is only two years old to start with.

But by the time you do all those neat things, your costs will surely exceed the price of this gleaming beauty — only $199,500. And have you considered the financing costs? You'll pay 1½ to 2% for the loan itself and the least interest you'll be able to get will be a starting 12¾% at the "lowest" rates going. There is a loan of $120,000 at 9¾% interest that will only cost you $125 to take over. And the monthly payment differences over the three percent differential amount to over $300 extra each month at the higher rate. Can you afford NOT to consider the relatively lower costs to you of this home?

Three bedrooms, two baths, living room, separate dining room, double garage, huge kitchen, half acre of oak-filled land. Immaculate condition.

3 BEDRMS., 2½ BATHS, VIEW, NEW, $235,000

This beautifully built home is almost in town. It offers unusual, tri-level living with a Point Lobos view from the master bedroom. There are 2½ baths and all the amenities one would expect in a new, architect-designed home.

HIGH MEADOW LOT—$115,000

This quarter-acre lot is a very low-priced one for such a prestigious area. A two-story house will have a great mountain view and some ocean view. It's on the west side of Edgefield and is definitely priced to sell NOW.

2 NEW, CLOSE-IN CARMEL HOMES

These brand-new, two-bedroom, two-bath homes are located at 9th and Torres, just a block and a half from the Carmel business district. Single-level, excellent floor plans, superb construction, meticulous detail. All rooms are generous sized. The neighborhood is very quiet, and it is an easy, level walk to town. See these to appreciate. One is priced at $315,000 and one at $335,000.

ROCKY CREEK RANCH—BREATH-TAKING VIEWS—OVER 600 ACRES, SOUTH OF CARMEL

On a clear day you can see forever (almost). The ocean view goes north past Santa Cruz! There are fine, closer ocean views of Bixby Creek Bridge and Division Knoll, and beautiful views of the mountains all around. A good poriton of the property is either almost flat or gently sloping; some of it is quite steep. The vegetation is outstanding—groves of Redwoods, huge Oak trees, areas of Chaparral, Madrone, Manzanita and Greese Wood. Rocky Creek touches one corner of the property. There are perhaps dozens of large, practical level building sites on this magnificent acreage, one being an over 100-acre meadow. All this and much, much more is yours for $2,000,000. The owner will finance with terms open to negotiation.

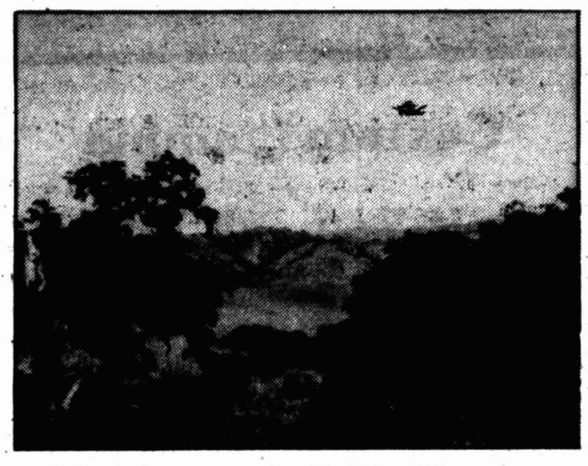
Steinbeck Country

Few parts of our country have been more lovingly described than John Steinbeck's "pastures of heaven". Lush, lovely meadows teeming with fertility. Upswept hillsides dotted with clusters of oak, mantled with seas of undulating grass. High, broad ridges from which vast vistas of mountains, valleys and even the blue Pacific luxuriously display their quiet beauty.

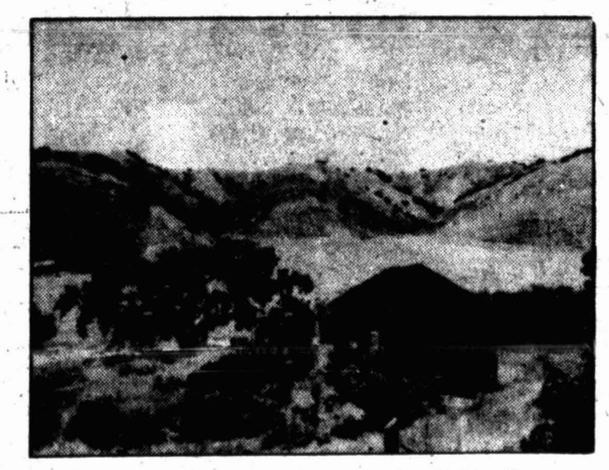
In the midst of this favored area lies this 303 acre gentleman's ranch, a superb mix of high and low lands. Owned by one family for several generations, its fertile valley was for years the growing grounds for tomatoes used in canning Monterey sardines. Its hillsides and high ranges were the luxuriant province of sleek, fat cattle and free running horses.



In latter years exclusive homes have begun to dot the high hillsides adjacent to this property. And why not? Corral de Tierra Road, a paved county highway, winds through the valleys and has brought the world to this doorstep. Monterey Airport is only 15 minutes away, downtown Monterey a mere 15 miles, the charming village of Carmel just a few minutes farther. It's no longer remote, yet as beautiful as ever.

The ranch begins at the 6-mile post. Below, on the north, are some 80 acres of rich bottom land, rising gently to rounded foothills. One oak, at the border, has grown completely around a museum-worthy barbed wire fence. To the south, the hills rise past patches of oak trees to a ridge nearly 1400 feet high, bordered on the east by the less traveled Underwood Road. Magnificent homesites stand out in the imagination on the various spurs of the ridge, and there is future subdivision potential.

The assessor recognizes the whole piece as three parcels: 2 each of about 140 acres, one of 21. None may be separated in this sale. It is immediately great pasture land, with great scenic beauty and potential for some cash crops. Who knows what it can become?



The far border is just past the 6.8 milepost. No improvements: only a long abandoned schoolhouse, a memory of a corncrib, and a now deserted ranch-house site. The price is $1,500,000. For information and a personal inspection, call:

FLYING THE HULL, a crew member uses his weight to balance a tricky Hobie catamaran. More than 100 of the speedy craft will race Monterey Bay in the Otter Regatta, Saturday and Sunday, June 7-8. Races begin at 11:30 a.m., both days, from a point off Cannery Row. The 14-, 16- and 18-foot Hobies will be on view along Monterey Beach, next to Wharf No. 2, before and after the races.

Hobie-cat regatta

Hobie-cats, those skittish colts of the sailboat breed, will tackle the tricky waters of Monterey Bay when the 1980 Otter Regatta is launched Saturday and Sunday, June 7-8. The event is expected to attract more than 100 of the twin-hulled craft in divisions for 14-, 16- and 18-foot boats. The regatta is sponsored by local Hobie Fleet 222.

One of 10 points regattas in Northern California, the winners accrue points toward eventual placement in national Hobie standings. They also receive trophies and have a heck of a good time.

Because they are very light, displace very little water, and carry a relatively large amount of sail, Hobies are known to turn turtle at the slightest excuse. Even when they skim forward rather than up-and-over, their two-man crew is often seen hanging precariously over the side "flying the hull." The Otter Regatta, incidentally, is expected to bring out many women skippers and crew members.

The Hobies will be lined up along Monterey Beach, adjacent to Wharf No. 2 before and after the races both days. Their colorful sails should create an impressive sight. Spectators are invited to join the crew members on the beach and inspect the craft.

Races will begin from a point off Cannery Row and continue from approximately 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days. Good viewing spots are along Cannery Row, Lovers Point, the Monterey wharves, and Monterey Beach.

Valley artist exhibits in Monterey

Silk tapestries and fibre-paper works by Virginia Sevier Rogers are currently on view through June 20 at the Orange Cloud Studio, 329 Ocean Ave., Monterey.

A resident of Carmel Valley, Miss Rogers began exploring handmade paper techniques in 1969. Her fibre-paper work presents a sensitive understanding of natural colors. The brightly colored fibres constrast against the soft textural patterns of the paper to create a sculptural effect in what appears to be a two-dimensional art form. The three-dimensional pieces combine ceramic beads, fibres and wax.

The exhibit of fibre-paper work is Miss Roger's first outside her own Valley studio.

Orange Cloud Studio is open 11 a.m.-6 p.m., Tuesday through Friday; and noon-6 p.m., Saturday. For additional information, phone 373-1831.

YMCA camps planned

Nine summer camp sessions and adventure caravan trips will be offered this summer by the Monterey Peninsula YMCA begining June 16 and continuing through mid-August.

On June 16 campers ages 8 through 13 will leave for Camp Campbell on the San Lorenzo River in the Santa Cruz Mountains. Activities will include hiking, swimming, and boating, plus many special events.

A trip to Yosemite will start June 23 for boys and girls from 9 to 13 years old, while campers ages 9 through 12 will leave for a week at Sequoia Lake on June 27. A second session at Sequoia Lake will start on July 3. Both sessions will feature swimming, boating and fishing on the lake, as well as crafts, archery, campfires, games, devotions and nature study.

Sports Camp at Loma Mar is scheduled for July 12-19 for youngsters entering fifth through seventh grades. In addition to soccer, tennis, volleyball and softball, there will be the usual camping activities. Another camp session at Loma Mar will start July 19, for third through fifth graders.

A second adventure caravan will leave for Tuolomne Meadows on July 28, and a third trip is scheduled to East Side Sierra on Aug. 12. Also scheduled is a raft trip on the Trinity River Aug. 8. The raft trip is for young people ages 12 and over, while youngsters from 9 to 15 may participate in the adventure caravan trips.

For information on any of the trips, contact the Monterey Peninsula YMCA, 404 Camino El Estero, Monterey, or phone 373-4166.
